Jaycees, firemen to hold ride for cancer research

Chuck Bischoff, a member of Antioch's Volunteer Fire Dept., and John Van Haeke, a member of the Jaycees, are co-chairmen of the Antioch American Cancer Society Annual Bike-A-Thon to be held Sunday, Sept. 20.

The chairmen indicate that the response from children and adults for their rider entry blanks has been excellent, indicating that again this year's event promises to be a real success.

Antioch's route will cover seven miles, starting at the Antioch Fire Station on Orchard St.

Participants are encouraged to ride the route as many times as they are able, but no one will be able to pass through checkpoint one, the fire station, after 3 p.m.

The Bike-A-Thon starts at 10 a.m. and riders must begin only from the first checkpoint at the fire station. There will be two other checkpoints on the route.

Entry blanks may be obtained from all area schools, banks, the Antioch Library and the village hall, together with many area businesses.

Ten-speed bicycles will be awarded to the four top riders on the Antioch route, one more bike than has been awarded in other years.

These bicycles have been provided through the courtesy of the First National Bank of Antioch, Raymond Chevrolet and Oldsmobile, Inc., The State Bank of Antioch, and the Strang Funeral Home.

Bike-A-Thon t-shirts will be given to each rider who turns in at least $50, and jackets will be awarded to riders who turn in $200 or more. These prizes have been provided by the Antioch True Value Hardware and the Antioch Volunteer Fire Dept.

Harvest time

The farmers are getting into their fields with heavy equipment and that's a sure sign of autumn. In spite of an unusually dry summer followed by heavy rains, the corn crops were not hurt. It will be an average harvest though, not a bumper crop in the Antioch area. — Photo by John Doetsch.

Ed Strang, community leader, dies at 75

Well-known community activist and long-time Antioch and southeastern Wisconsin area businessman, Edmond R. Strang, died at the age of 75 on Saturday, at Victory Memorial Hospital after a long illness.

Strang worked for his father at the funeral home in Antioch from 1931 to 1950 when he assumed ownership. He headed the operation of Strang's Funeral Home on Main St. in Antioch, from 1950 until his retirement in 1976, when the funeral home came under the leadership of one of his long-time employees, Daniel Dugenske.

He was a board member emeritus of the Board of Directors of the State Bank of Antioch; a member of the Sequoit Masonic Lodge 827 for 54 years; a member of the Antioch Lions Club, the Loyal Order of the Moose Lodge 525 and the Lakes Region Historical Society. He also belonged to several Illinois and Wisconsin funeral directors' associations during his lifetime.

One Thursday last month in our Trauma Center
we handled
3 emergency helicopter transfers, took care of 35 on-the-job injuries, treated 104 assorted cuts, bruises and sprains
...and sutured
one pug-nose bear.

Everyone has recovered fully.

With the only certified Trauma Center in McHenry County, we see and treat all kinds of emergencies.

But we never forget that each medical problem—from a broken leg to a cardiac arrest—is attached to a person, a neighbor. So while we concentrate on the expert emergency care you expect, we also know the value of that special kind of "medi-

Like taking a few extra minutes to stitch up an old friend.

Because a little added caring never hurts.

Emmons '87-'88 budget shows 10 percent jump

by GLORIA DAVIS

The 1987-88 budget adopted by the Emmons Grade School Board shows a 10 percent increase over last year's budget.

The adopted budget amounts to $625,000 compared to last year's expenditures of $585,000 without life safety costs.

According to Emmons Supt. Jill Ballock, the increasing costs of insurance, special education and utilities account for the budget increase.

The board learned that enrollment at Emmons is up by 13 pupils this year, with the total enrollment rising from last year's 200 students to 213.

A discussion on the expected increase in future enrollment because of the current growth patterns in the school district was held.

Library sets new story times

Nippersink Dist. Library's fall session story hours for three- to five-year-old preschoolers will begin Tuesday and Wednesday, Oct. 6 and 7, and continue through December.

The Tuesday program is from 10 to 10:30 a.m. The Wednesday session is from 10 to 11 a.m.

Younger children are encouraged to join the half-hour program. Activities for both groups will include stories, games, fingerplays, music and films. Register at the library during regular library hours or call (815) 678-4014.

Bedtime Story Hour will be offered on Mondays from 7 to 7:30 p.m. This program is for two- and three-year-olds who are encouraged to come in their pajamas and bring their favorite stuffed animal for stories and music before their bedtime. No registration is necessary for this session.

Special board meeting

The Board of Education of Antioch Community Consolidated Dist. 34 will hold a special meeting at 8 p.m. on Tuesday, Oct. 6, in the board room at W.C. Petty Elementary School, 850 Highview Dr., Antioch. The purpose of the meeting is to accept bids on bonds; and to act upon agenda items from the regular Sept. 15 meeting, which was cancelled.

Emmons gives teachers 8 percent salary hike

by GLORIA DAVIS

The Emmons Grade School Board officially ratified a three year contract with the teachers at a board meeting this week.

The teachers had ratified the agreement on the first day of teacher inservice for the school year, Aug. 25.

The three-year contract calls for a salary raise of $1,535 or approximately 8 percent per teacher for the first year. The teachers' salary raise will be $829 or 4 percent the second year to be followed by another straight eight percent raise the third year.

The board also agreed to increase its payments on the teachers' insurance calling for a payment of $1,350 per year per teacher. Teachers' allowable sick leave will be changed from the present 13 days per year to 14 days in 1988 and increased to 15 days in 1989.

Village hires new teacher for Parks' Camp Crayola

by GLORIA DAVIS

The Antioch Village Board, at the request of the Oakwood Knolls Assn., voted to establish a clearly marked 15-foot fire lane at the boat launch in the Knolls to eliminate the parking problem in the area.

The board also approved the reinstatement of Marie Brausam and Ardeen Harris as teachers at Camp Crayola and also approved the hiring of a new teacher, Pat Santiemmo.

The board set official "Trick and Treat" hours for the village on Oct. 31 from 3-6 p.m.

In other business, the board:

— voted to allow Parks Dir. Glenda Tomaschik to attend a Parks Convention from Nov. 19-22.

— granted a variance to Nu Way Speakers to allow the building of a storage shed in the company's side yard.

Continue zoning board hearing for vet hospital

A hearing by the Lake County Zoning Board of Appeals, held on Monday, at the Antioch Twp. Hall, has been continued until 1:30 p.m. on Monday, Oct. 5, to allow the amending of the zoning request.

The request is from the State Bank of Woodstock and Michael Passarella, DVM, the contract purchaser, to rezone the 3.93 acres located on the east side of Rte. 83, approximately one-fourth mile north of Lake Shore Dr. and one mile south of Rte. 173.

The rezoning request asked that the present zoning of UR-3 (urban residential-3) be changed to HC zone (highway commercial).

Passarella wants to build and operate a veterinary clinic at that location.

Lions irate about story on Bear cancellation

by GLORIA DAVIS

An officer of the Antioch Lions Club called the Antioch News-Reporter extremely angry about the item in last week's paper in the Community Calendar that said the regular Antioch Lions Club meeting on Monday had been called off because of what most football fans considered to be the Chicago Bears football game of the year.

"That makes us look like fools, to call off a meeting because of a Bears game," he said demanding an apology.

He added that another reason, which the paper failed to mention, for cancelling the meeting was the fact that the Lions had their Golden Anniversary Dinner on Saturday and it was felt that a meeting two days later was not necessary.

The paper was aware of the dinner and also of the celebration the Lions had for the community on Saturday afternoon at the pavillion in Williams Park, we were there to cover it.

Both were given much publicity and the paper mistakenly assumed that everyone was aware that the Lions had a busy weekend. We were unaware that these two functions also were connected with the cancellation.

The item was mentioned because the paper mistakenly thought that, like many of the village boards and other organizations all over Lake County, that either changed their meeting dates or cut them short last Monday in deference to the game, the Lions were proud to be Bear fans.

The paper apologizes for the item, there was no intent at making anyone look foolish. We promise to check our sources more carefully in the future.

Time Machine

TWENTY YEARS AGO: Sept. 14, 1967

A pickup truck owned by Mayor Raymond Toft was stolen from the mayor's own driveway and found abandoned in Benton, Wis. undamaged.

A plaque from Frank L. Wais, a young Antioch man serving in Vietnam, thanked Antioch people who have been sending packages under Project Vietnam to Antiochans serving in Vietnam.

Mike Bailey joined the U. S. Army and Pedersen's Battery closed its doors after operating on Main St. for 23 years.

Postmaster Joseph Wolf was commended for his work selling U.S. Savings Bonds.

The Antioch Rescue Squad held its third annual golf tournament at George Diamond's Country Club. John Teresi of Teresi Chevrolet-Oldsmobile, gave a new car for a prize at the dinner.

The Adrian Muellers were the first family to move into Antioch's new subdivision, Sequit Terrace.

Round Steak was 19 cents a pound and a rump roast was 30 cents per pound at the Antioch M&P.

Ralph Zanick was quarterbacking the Antioch Sequits.

TEN YEARS AGO: September 14, 1977

Turner Dr. was renamed Eulbek Dr. in honor of Herman Eulbek, one of the founders of the Antioch Rescue Squad; the P.M.L. Theater was no longer one block off of Broadway as that street's name was changed to Toft, Ave. in honor to former Mayor Ray Toft and the Quality went out of the street linking Main and Victoria (just joking Eulbek) when it was renamed Wilton St. in honor of former Mayor Robert Wilton.

Sandy Jones and Betty Sorensen were on the Sequit Punt Squad.

Dissension ran rampant at the P.M.L. meeting where, according to Joe Bunley, one of the theater group's founders, two talented members were charged and kicked out of the organization without a hearing. New members were disenfranchised and, although they paid their dues, were not allowed to vote on the matter.

Kathy Toft and Wayne Soder announced their engagement. Arlene and Lou Crawford won a half steer from the Antioch Little League and Babe Ruth League benefit.

Dennis Jarjenek fired a 73 in Sunday's final round of the Antioch Open but the event was won by Chris Marszalek who shot a 32 on the front nine at Spring Valley Country Club.

John M. Lasco shot an 86 in the first round of Class B golfing in that same tournament.

Antioch grid Coach Roger Andrews' talented son Brian was quarterbacking the Sequits under dad's tutelage.

The cost is $4 per week which includes the cost of bowling, a shirt and shoe rental.

Anyone interested in joining can call Bonnie Boushi at (312) 495-1155.

Bargaining reduces DUI charge

The Wisconsin driver that caused the accident in which Michael Greeniger, 46, Antioch died in December, 1986, under a plea bargain agreement with the Lake County State's Atty's office, pleaded guilty to a reduced felonious count of drunken driving in front of Lake County Judge William Black.

Michael Stenzen, 30, Salem, Wis. will appear in front of Black for sentencing on Tuesday, Sept. 22. Under the agreement made with the state's attorney's office reducing the original reckless homicide charge, there will be no time in prison included in Stenzen's sentence.

Greeniger was fatally injured when Stenzen's car crossed the center line while traveling on Ede. 173 near Ede. 45, hitting the Greeniger car head-on.

Swindled families seek $10 million suit

by DAN BECKER

About 70 people who have been swindled out of nearly $200,000 by a Vernon Hills developer filled the First National Bank of Antioch to hear Atty. Robert J. Long's plans to their money back. And the news wasn't good.

Long, who is heading up a $10 million class action suit against Thomas J. McMannus, accused of swindling people from five other states, told the worried families that there is not a good chance they will get all of their money returned.

Illinois Attorney General Neil Hartigan filed suit on Friday, Sept. 11, seeking restitution and civil penalties against McMannus.

According to Long, there are still several stumbling blocks the he has to overcome in order to fully prosecute McMannus.

"Most of McMannus' files have been turned over to the state, but his wife, Linda, still has some very important records. She can be subpoenaed to release the files, but can ignore them all she wants. All that will arise out of that is a contempt of court charge," Long said.

Long said that J. Michael Fitzsimmons, the attorney for McMannus, claims that there will "be a full disclosure of the records by the next meeting date (Sept. 21)." Long noted that while Fitzsimmons is claiming that there will be full disclosure, nobody knows if it actually happen.

"As for getting his assets, there are none. McMannus rented his house, furniture, and car; there is no lump sum of money that can be found in any accounts right now. There may be a substantial amount of money in some hidden accounts, but there is no way we can find it without the withheld files," Long added.

A substantial number of individuals who had given anywhere between $5,000 to $20,000 to McMannus, invested what they called their life savings and wondered "what to do now."

Long told them to make copies of every piece of information concerning the transactions with McMannus and "do a lot of hoping."

"The last time I talked to McMannus, he was in a room with two prison guards, wearing his prison greens and still contends that he is going to build those houses. The guy is a hell of a salesman," Long added.

"It seems that he was building up these deals and planned to put about $6 million in his pocket and say 'bye-bye'. But Vernon Hills police got to him before his total unfolded."

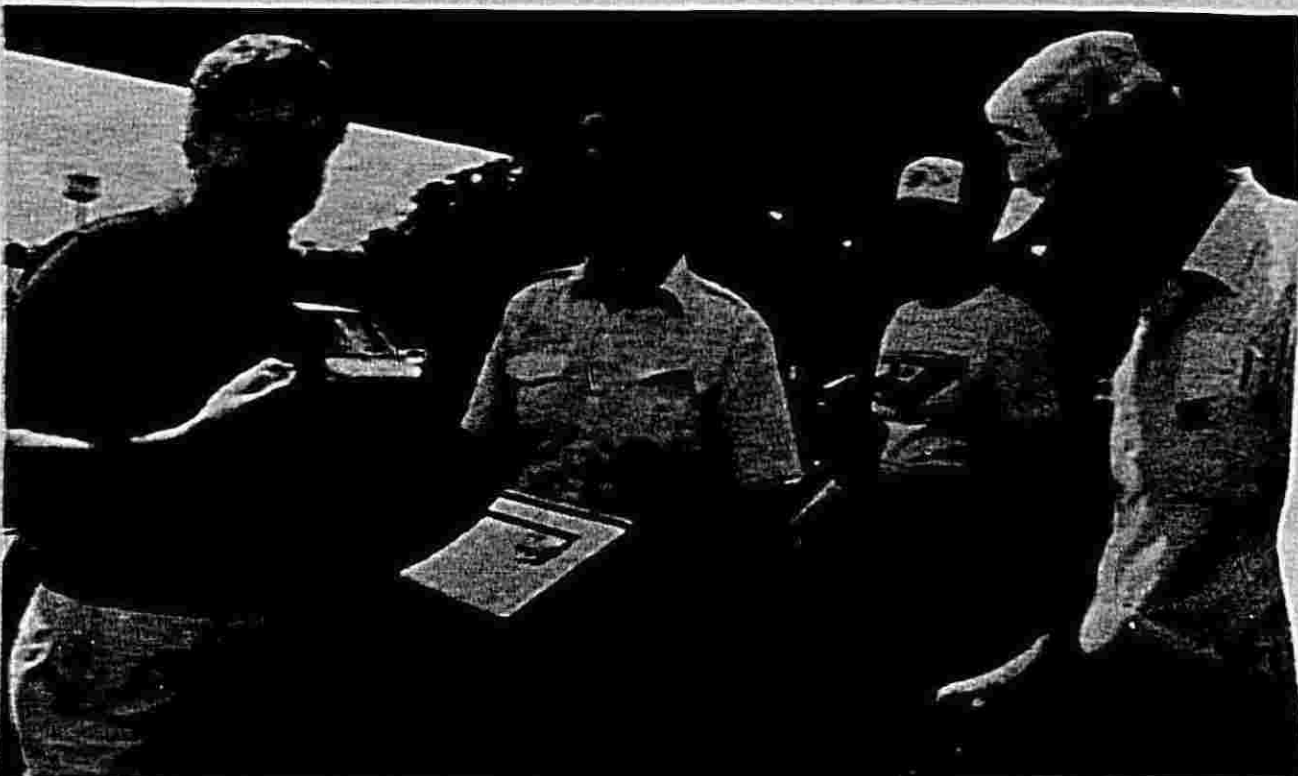

Long said that there are proposals being made which would allow the people to buy the land they had intentionally sought.

St. Peter's sets special Mass for shut-ins

The St. Peter's Ministry of Care Committee of Antioch is planning a special Mass for all shut-ins of the parish and others who find manipulating the stairways of the church an obstacle to their participating in Sunday Masses.

This Mass will be celebrated on Sunday, Sept. 20 at 11 a.m. in the St. Peter Social Center.

More convenient entrance can be made from the north parking lot

Picture symbolizes Constitution's signing

On Wednesday, Sept. 9, Central High School commemorated the Bicentennial of the United States Constitution with a special project of veteran social studies teacher, Frank Milz.

At 9 a.m., in a ceremony open to the public, a print of an oil painting entitled "The Signing of the Constitution" by Alton S. Tobey was hung in Central's library. Milz hopes that it will serve "as a reminder to all, not only of the document itself, but also of the wisdom of the delegates who met in Philadelphia in 1787."

The Commission on the Bicentennial of the Constitution, headed by Justice Burger, sent prints to all high schools, along with the suggestion that they be used in some way to help celebrate the 200th year of the Constitution.

In return, the commission asked each participating school to describe how the print would be used to commemorate the occasion.

Names of participating schools will be entered in the commission's record.

Milz decided that showcasing the print by framing it and hanging it in the school library for all to see would be the best way to utilize the gift.

To accomplish this, he enlisted the help of Paddock Lake residents. Vincent Mangiameli, a member of the VFW, constructed a frame of American pine. In keeping with the theme, Milz stained the frame in colonial oak. Through Diane Lichthardt, Milz obtained a sheet of non-glare glass to cover the print.

Regarding his efforts, Milz, who is in his 27th year of teaching, explains that "the inspiration to have this print framed lies in the fact that everyone should be reminded of the freedoms they have and how they got them."

The saying that 'a picture is worth a thousand words' is projected here.

Drunk drivers, tax cheats could have stiffer penalties

Rep. Caucus Chair Adeline Geo-Karis (R-Zion) said life could be tougher for drunk drivers and tax cheats, while those who forget to buckle up their seat belts won't have to worry about a ticket—unless they violate another traffic law—and Olympic athletes many get some help from generous taxpayers, all under legislation signed by Gov. Thompson during the week.

The Governor has picked up the pace for reviewing legislation as he works to beat an end-of-the-month deadline for action on virtually all bills sent to him by the General Assembly. Sen. Geo-Karis said about 800 bills were still awaiting the Governor's pen as of Sept. 11. Among the measures signed during the week were the following:

Drunken drivers (HB 2700)—Stiffens the penalty for repeat offenses of driving drunk. For a second conviction of driving under the influence, an individual's license will be revoked for three years, rather than one. A third conviction will result in a six-year license suspension. A third conviction also becomes a Class 4 felony, rather than a misdemeanor. Felony convictions can result in imprisonment in a state penitentiary.

Tax Cheating (SB 1222)—Increases penalties for filing frivolous tax returns and cracks down on persons who assist with fraudulent returns or Circuit Breaker applications. The new law will also make it easier for the Secretary of State to cancel the corporate charters of companies that fail to pay taxes, expand the evidence which can be used to prosecute tax cheats and increase other penalties for tax law violations.

Seat Belts (SB 94)—Prohibits law enforcement officers from stopping a vehicle solely for a seat belt violation. When the seat belt law was originally enacted, it was with the understanding that persons would be ticketed for seat belt violations only if they were stopped for another offense, such as speeding. However, police in some areas have been stopping and ticketing individuals solely for not wearing a seat belt. The new law clarifies the original intent of the seat belt bill.

Olympic Athletes (SB 448)—Creates a new voluntary income tax checkoff box to solicit donations for olympic athletes. The box, which would enable tax payers to designate a portion of the income tax refunds to go to support the athletes, would be similar to existing tax checkoffs for child abuse prevention.

Marina construction moving on schedule

The Zion-Winthrop Harbor-Beach Park Chamber of Commerce North Point Marina Committee reported that the project is progressing on schedule, with much of the work completed.

George Braam, senior project manager with Kudrna & Associates, reported that the launch ramps have been constructed, as well as 700 feet of the south breakwater base. The dredging process continues for the main basin, utilizing a closed system to prevent any direct water contact with the lake. Braam presented the chamber with aerial slides of the current construction.

The chief engineer reported the lottery for boat slips is over, with slips still available on a first-come, first-served basis. Over 100 30-foot slips have been reserved.

State Rep. Robert Churchill reported that a $600,000 project for the Ninth St. and Sheridan Rd. intersection in Winthrop Harbor is planned by the Illinois Dept. of Transportation. IDOT is also interested in discussing options for the intersection of Seventh St. and Sheridan Rd. after traffic counts are developed with the assistance of the North Point Marina Committee and the Village of Winthrop Harbor.

It was also reported that two developers are being considered for the construction of the Marine Service Center, with over $3.3 million to be spent on this phase of the development. Both developers will be looking for tenants. The final decision of the bid award was expected by mid-September. Inquiries about becoming a tenant may be directed to Bill Jansen at (312) 746-2845.

The North Point Marina project is being featured at the University of Wisconsin during a one-week course on marina design and development.

Adolph captures 1st in All Illinois

Bernie Adolph, manager of a suburban furniture store, captured first place in the All Illinois C Boat regatta.

Adolph, a member of the host Long Lake Yacht Club, put together two firsts and one second for the title in competition Saturday and Sunday, Sept. 12 and 13. Adolph resides in Clarendon Hills.

The All Illinois, which attracted 21 entrants, provided a preview in northern Illinois waters for the annual Blue Chip Regatta featuring the top 25 C scow skippers in the Midwest who will be competing Saturday and Sunday, Sept. 19 and 20, at Pistakee Lake on the Chain O'Lakes.

The Blue Chip is one of the major sanctioned events of the Inland Lake Yachting Assn.

Kozuchowski ready for papal visit

As a permanent deacon, Chester (Kozy) Kozuchowski and his wife, Shirley, will be in Detroit Saturday, Sept. 19 for an audience with Pope John Paul II on the final leg of his visit to the United States and a tour of North America.

Approximately 1,800 of the U.S. deaconate have been invited for the papal visit. Kozuchowski, a resident of Old Shorewood Subdivision, Avon Township, serves at St. Gilbert Church, Grayslake.

"We're excited. Original plans called for the deacons to gather in New Orleans. When that didn't happen, it was very disappointing. This will be a thrill of a lifetime," Kozuchowski exclaimed.

Day care licensing laws strengthen

Gov. Thompson approved several measures to strengthen licensing requirements for day care centers, according to state Rep. Virginia F. Frederick (R-59).

Frederick said one of the new laws will require the Department of Children and Family Services (DCFS) to investigate all child care centers which are operating without a license. Under the provisions of Senate Bill 939, child care operators who do not have a license will be guilty of a Class A misdemeanor.

If operation continues without an attempt to obtain a license, the day care operator would be guilty of a business offense punishable by a fine of up to $10,000 each day of the violation.

A second bill signed by the Governor creates a "conditional licensure" option for child care facilities which are not in compliance with DCFS licensing standards, but are not a danger to residents and have a corrective plan to meet DCFS standards within six months. If standards are not met during the term of the conditional license, DCFS will revoke the facility's license.

In the area of child protection, a new law expands the number of state employees required to report suspected cases of child abuse or neglect to the Department of Children and Family Services (DCFS).

House Bill 2872 adds Department of Rehabilitation Services personnel, including hotline, domestic violence and recreational staff, to the list of mandated reporters.

House Bill 478 requires Department of Public Aid caseworkers to check on the suitability of the home and status of the health of any children at the home during visits. It also requires reporting evidence of abuse or neglect to DCFS.

New Sheriff's Dept. unit will beef up rural patrol

The Lake County Sheriff's Dept. has implemented a Traffic Enforcement Unit to investigate motor vehicle mishaps involving fatalities or serious personal injury, Lake County Sheriff Robert H. Babcox announced.

The TE unit, composed of highly trained traffic accident investigators, is part of the Sheriff's Patrol Division, commanded by Deputy Chief Christopher Clements.

"We need to stem the tide of increasing motor vehicle

Schaffer joins committee

Sen. Jack Schaffer (R-McHenry County) has been re-appointed a member of the Illinois Toll Highway Authority Advisory Committee.

The authority consists of 25 members, 15 legislators appointed by the legislative leaders and 10 public members appointed by Gov. James Thompson. For the past several years Sen. Schaffer has served as chairman of the Illinois Toll Highway Authority Advisory Committee.

"The advisory committee meets with the Toll Highway Authority to advise it on matters relating to policy and administration of the toll highway system," Sen. Schaffer explained.

ENR invites leaders to workshop Sept. 30

Community leaders are invited to a workshop on Sept. 30 at the Clarion Hotel in St. Louis to learn about municipal waste-to-energy projects.

A waste-to-energy system, an alternative to landfilling, recovers energy from waste to produce electricity, steam or hot water.

Participants will learn how to initiate a waste recovery project, arrange financing and bond sales, choose a system, minimize environmental problems and coordinate recycling operations with waste recovery.

The program, to be held from 8 a.m. to 4:45 p.m., costs $40 for advanced registration or $50 at the door. The fee includes fatalities and accidents in the unincorporated areas of Lake County," explained Sheriff Babcox, "and to accomplish this, we will have at least one TE Unit officer per shift who will patrol in pre-selected areas where statistics show an unusually high number of accidents, fatalities or traffic violations."

"We can't allow the reckless (and drunk) drivers to take over our highways," the sheriff added. "If the drunks want to see some real bars, the Lake County Sheriff's Patrol Officers will accommodate them by showing them the County Jail bars."

Babcox noted that the new Traffic Enforcement Unit will make use of radar to catch speeders who disregard school zones. "Schools are now open and children by the thousands in Lake County will be either walking or taking a school bus to and from school or being driven by their parents in the family car," he said. "We want to make the streets and highways especially safe for them."

Clements, deputy chief of the Sheriff's Patrol Division, cautioned all motorists to be alert for children getting off school buses.

"Remember, you must always stop before meeting or overtaking, from either direction, any school bus which has stopped to load or unload passengers," Clements said.

School bus drivers give notice of intent to stop at least 100 feet (200 feet in rural areas) in advance by flashing amber and red lights on the front and rear of the bus, and extend a stop sign when the bus stops. After stopping, a motorist may proceed if the bus starts moving again, if the bus driver signals the motorist to proceed, or if the flashing lights are off and the stop sign is no longer extended.

"The Traffic Enforcement Unit officers and all of the Sheriff's Patrol officers will be intensifying their patrol around the rural schools and be especially alert for school zone speeders," stated Deputy Clements.

Babcox urged all parents to teach their children the safety rules when walking to and from school.

"Remember, our children are our most precious cargo, and as with jewelry, let's keep our 'gems' safe this school year," he urged. "Buckle up—it's the law. Let's keep the seat belts on our kids (and ourselves) when in the family car."

Survey erosion

The research vessel Neecho has begun a two-week scientific survey of Lake Michigan off the Chicago area to evaluate the effects of coastal erosion on the shoreline and lake bottom, the U.S. Geological Survey announced.

Scientists aboard the USGS boat will use sophisticated equipment to determine water depths, outline underwater structures and contours, map the bottom of southern Lake Michigan, examine the geological character of nearshore sedimentary deposits and measure the effects of erosion on breakwaters and similar shoreline structures along the coast.

Foreman assists Pres. Reagan in Bork campaign

At the invitation of President Reagan, Lake County State's Attorney Fred Foreman met with the President and Gov. James Thompson of Illinois in Los Angeles on Aug. 28 to discuss the appointment of Robert Bork to the United States Supreme Court.

Also in attendance were Chief of Staff Howard Baker, Attorney General Edwin Meese and representatives of major law enforcement organizations.

Foreman is the president-elect of the National District Attorneys Assn. "I am pleased to work with Gov. Thompson to assist Pres.

Reagan in the campaign to obtain the confirmation of Robert Bork to the Supreme Court. Robert Bork is a qualified and respected jurist who will be a champion for the law abiding citizens of our country while serving on the Supreme Court. I consider it an honor to participate and offer any assistance in his confirmation and to lend the support of the National District Attorney's Assn. for his cause."

Foreman has also been appointed by State Rep. Thomas Homer to serve as a member of his Advisory Committee and to the House Judiciary II Sub-committee on Uniform Criminal Sentencing. This committee is reviewing the sentencing laws in Illinois to determine if any recommendation should be made for change. The committee will be working with the Bureau of Justice Assistance of the Dept. of Justice as well as the John Howard Assn. Foreman, who is the chairman of Gov. Thompson's Task Force on Jail and Detention Standards, is also president of the Illinois State's Attorneys Assn.

One item that Foreman will bring up to Rep. Homer and other members of the committee during the task force work is his recommendation for greater use of work farms as an alternative to prison incarceration.

In other matters, as a member of the Illinois Criminal Justice Information Authority, State's Attorney Foreman was very influential in obtaining federal funding to benefit several area law enforcement agencies. The Lake County Metropolitan Enforcement Group already hurt by cutbacks in state funding, was the beneficiary of a grant in the amount of $85,497. Another grant will add additional investigators to the State's Attorney's Office in Lake County and prosecutors to concentrate in the area of narcotics forfeitures which hit drug dealers in the pocketbook.

Foreman also worked closely convincing members of the authority to grant $150,000 to the Northern Illinois Police Crime Laboratory to upgrade their laboratory in order to expedite and confirm testing in narcotics cases.

In the area of grants for victims of crime, almost $1,000,000 has been given to such victims organizations as the Illinois Coalition Against Sexual Assault, Illinois Coalition Against Domestic Violence and other programs assisting victims of crime.

On a statewide basis, close to $162,000 has been granted to various State's Attorney's offices to establish victim assistance programs. The Lake County State's Attorney's Office will be the beneficiary of a $25,000 grant to establish a model program which will assist in counseling the survivors of homicide victims.

"I have worked hard to bring federal money not only into Lake County, but also into law enforcement agencies. This federal money will benefit the law abiding citizens in our country and the victims of crime," Foreman said.

Foreman has also been very successful in expanding the Child Support Enforcement Program in obtaining thousands of dollars in federal funding.

County to receive additional funding

Eleanor Rostron, chairman of Lake County Community Development Commission, has announced that Lake County has been selected to receive additional funding to continue the county's Rental Rehabilitation Program.

The county was notified by the U.S. Dept. of Housing and Urban Development (HUD) that Lake County, along with six other Illinois cities and counties will receive supplemental funding reflecting the county's outstanding performance in implementing the Rental Rehabilitation Program. Currently, Lake County is ranked ninth nationally with over $332,000 in loans committed in selected target areas of Lake County.

Rostron credited the success of the program to the high level of cooperation and coordination between the staffs of the Community Development Commission, the city of North Chicago, the Housing Authority of North Chicago, the Lake County Housing Authority and the rental property owners.

Under the Rehabilitation program the county provides a loan of up to 50 percent or $7,500 per unit to rehabilitate a rental unit with the owner providing the balance of funds required. The appropriate Housing Authority then oversees the actual rehabilitation and assists the owner in locating tenants for any vacant rehabilitated unit.

Nominations open for Academy of Educators

The Foundation for Excellence in Teaching is accepting nominations for the third annual Academy of Educators.

Nominations for excellent sixth, seventh and eighth grade teachers, currently teaching any subject full time in any public, independent or religious school in Cook, Lake or DuPage County, will be accepted through Dec. 11.

Each year, 10 teachers chosen for excellence in classroom performance are appointed to the Academy of Educators. These teachers receive a paid fall-term sabbatical for tuition-free study at Northwestern University, a $2,500 stipend, and a special professional development seminar series to prepare them for an enlarged leadership role in the Chicago-area education community.

The Foundation for Excellence in Teaching assists each of the school administrations from which teachers are selected with the cost of providing a replacement teacher for the fall term.

Each academy fellow's obligation in accepting the honor is to pledge to continue teaching for two years following the appointment to the Academy of Educators, and to develop a special commitment to the academy's leadership activities.

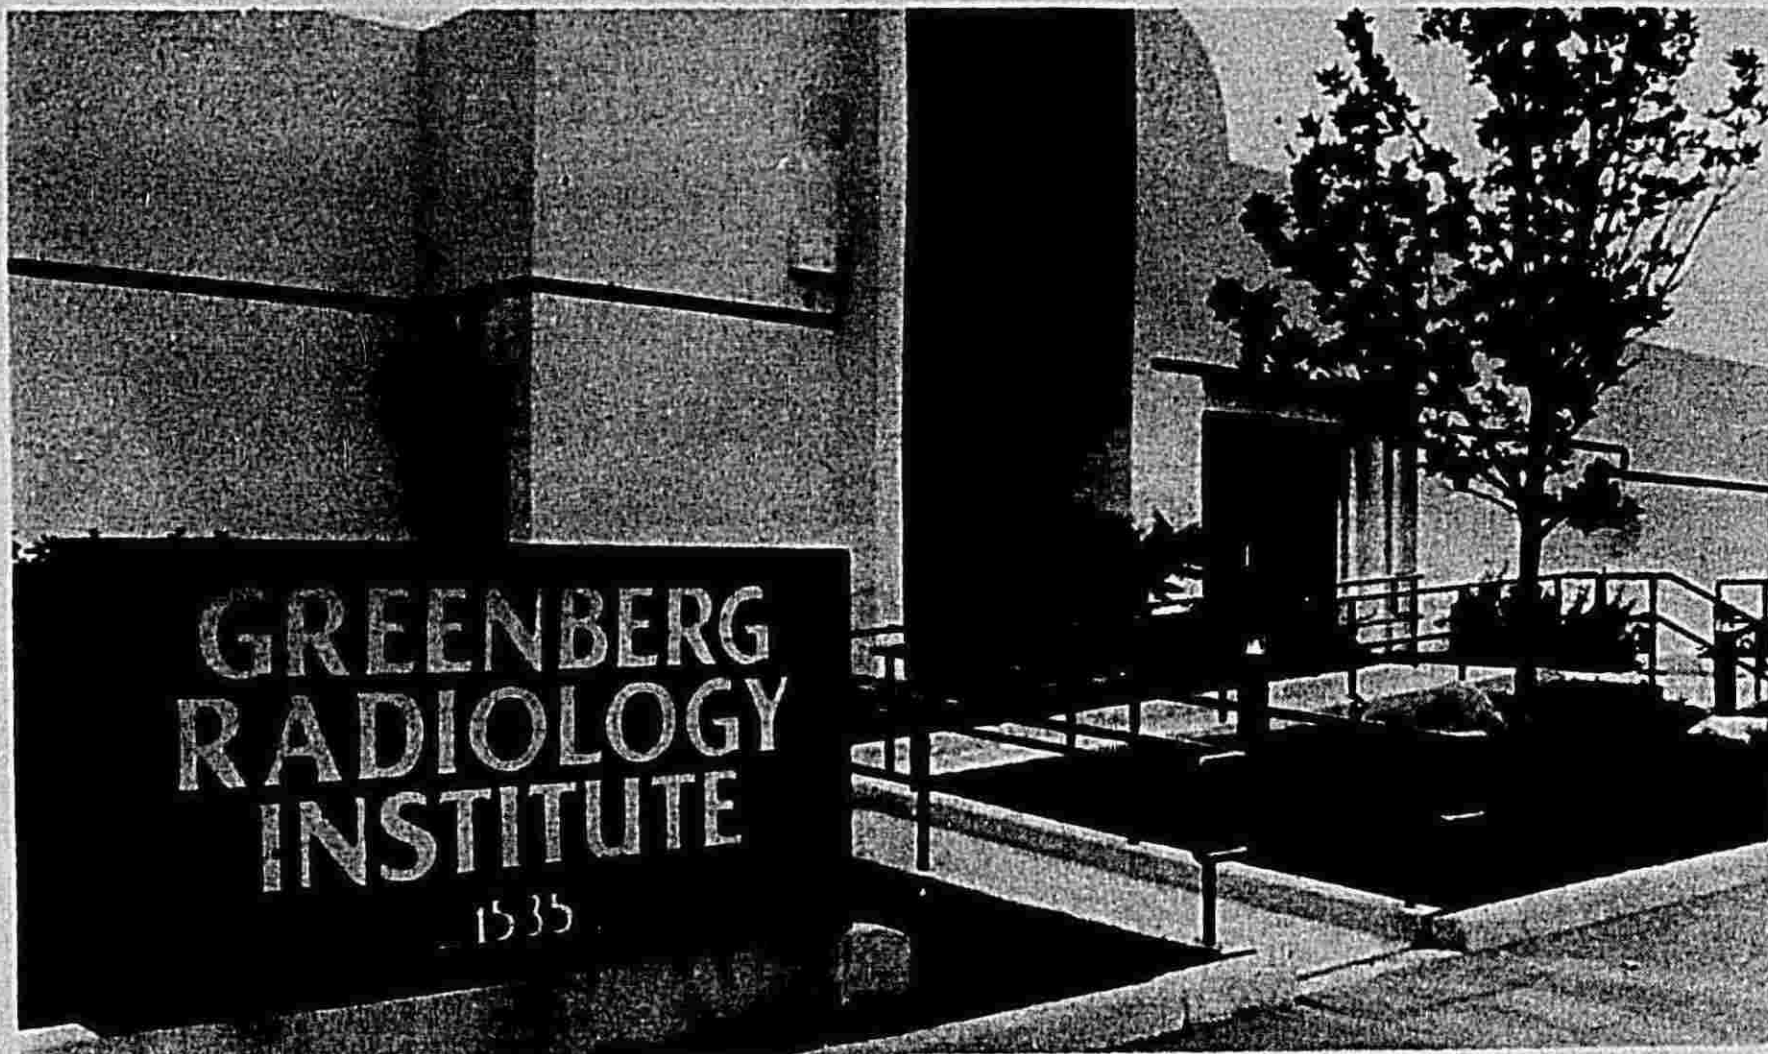

Outstanding teachers can be nominated by anyone—a teaching colleague, a current or former student, a parent of a student, an administrator, a school staff member or anyone who can attest that the nominated teacher had made a substantial difference in the lives of students.

Nominated sixth, seventh and eighth grade teachers can instruct in single subject areas or general curriculum.

Family members of the trustees, committee members or management of the Foundation for Excellence in Teaching are ineligible for the Academy of Educators.

To nominate a teacher for the academy, the nominator must write a letter or complete a nomination form stating the teacher's name, the address and phone number of the teacher's school, and the teacher's subject area, if appropriate. Nominations must also include the nominator's name and address, phone number and relationship of nominator to teacher. Finally, the nominator must briefly describe how that teacher has made a dramatic difference in the life of a specific student.

Nomination letters and forms should be sent to the Foundation for Excellence in Teaching, 2551 N. Clark St., Suite 401, Chicago, 60614-1717.

Council joins limo service in hiring

Sterling Limousine Manufacturing Corp. of Lake Bluff, maker of stretch limousines, has finalized arrangements with the Private Industry Council of Lake County to hire seven trainees for the skills needed in the Sterling Manufacturing process.

This on-the-job training contract will permit Sterling to be underway with production at a reduced cost for labor, since the Private Industry Council will reimburse Sterling half of the start-up wages of eligible employees.

Frederic Freeman, spokesman for the Sterling company, said, "If sales and the manufacturing process continue at the present rate, we plan to hire an additional eighteen people through the Council by the end of next year."

"The new workers take apprenticeship instruction from seasoned and experienced workers and from the managing foreman,"

Freeman said. Upon completion of training, workers will receive certificates, and as they continue with the firm, are expected to become instructors for following groups of Sterling workers. "In this manner, Sterling expects to grow and prosper," said Freeman.

To produce a luxury long-wheel-based limousine, the company begins with a standard Cadillac or Lincoln chassis and extends the automobile 54 to 72 inches. Freeman explained, "We then add accessories such as television sets, AM/FM stereo cassette radios, VCRs and even mini-computers for the busy executives who will be the passengers."

CORE buyer

Sue Olson of Holiday Shoppe and Studio, Ltd. of Gurnee accepts certificate naming her a CORE (Customer Oriented Retail Expert) from Tony DeMasi, editor and co-publisher of 'Giftware News.' Presentation is made at Chicago Gift and Accessory Market held at Chicago Merchandise Mart. To receive certification, buyers were required to attend four educational seminars and be shown lines in five showrooms.

Stork makes 4 deliveries to former Lakeland woman

Kansas City lit the sky when a former Lakeland resident became the mother of quadruplets.

News reporters and television camera crews descended upon St. Luke's Hospital to get the first pictures of Cindy Depke Demming, 29, and her three sons and daughter, the first born to Cindy and her husband, Pat, a career official with the U.S. Postal Service.

"It was like the World Series," exclaimed Mr. and Mrs. Robert Depke, grandparents. The grandfather, still a bit breathless, is supervisor of Warren Twp. and a former member of the Lake County Board.

Modern medical techniques had forewarned the Demmings that they would be the parents of four children, so a team of 30 doctors and nurses was in the delivery room.

"The big surprise was the birth of a granddaughter," reported Supervisor Depke. The babies, born Friday, Sept. 11, weighed from 2.3 pounds to 3.2 pounds. Four boys had been expected.

The children were named

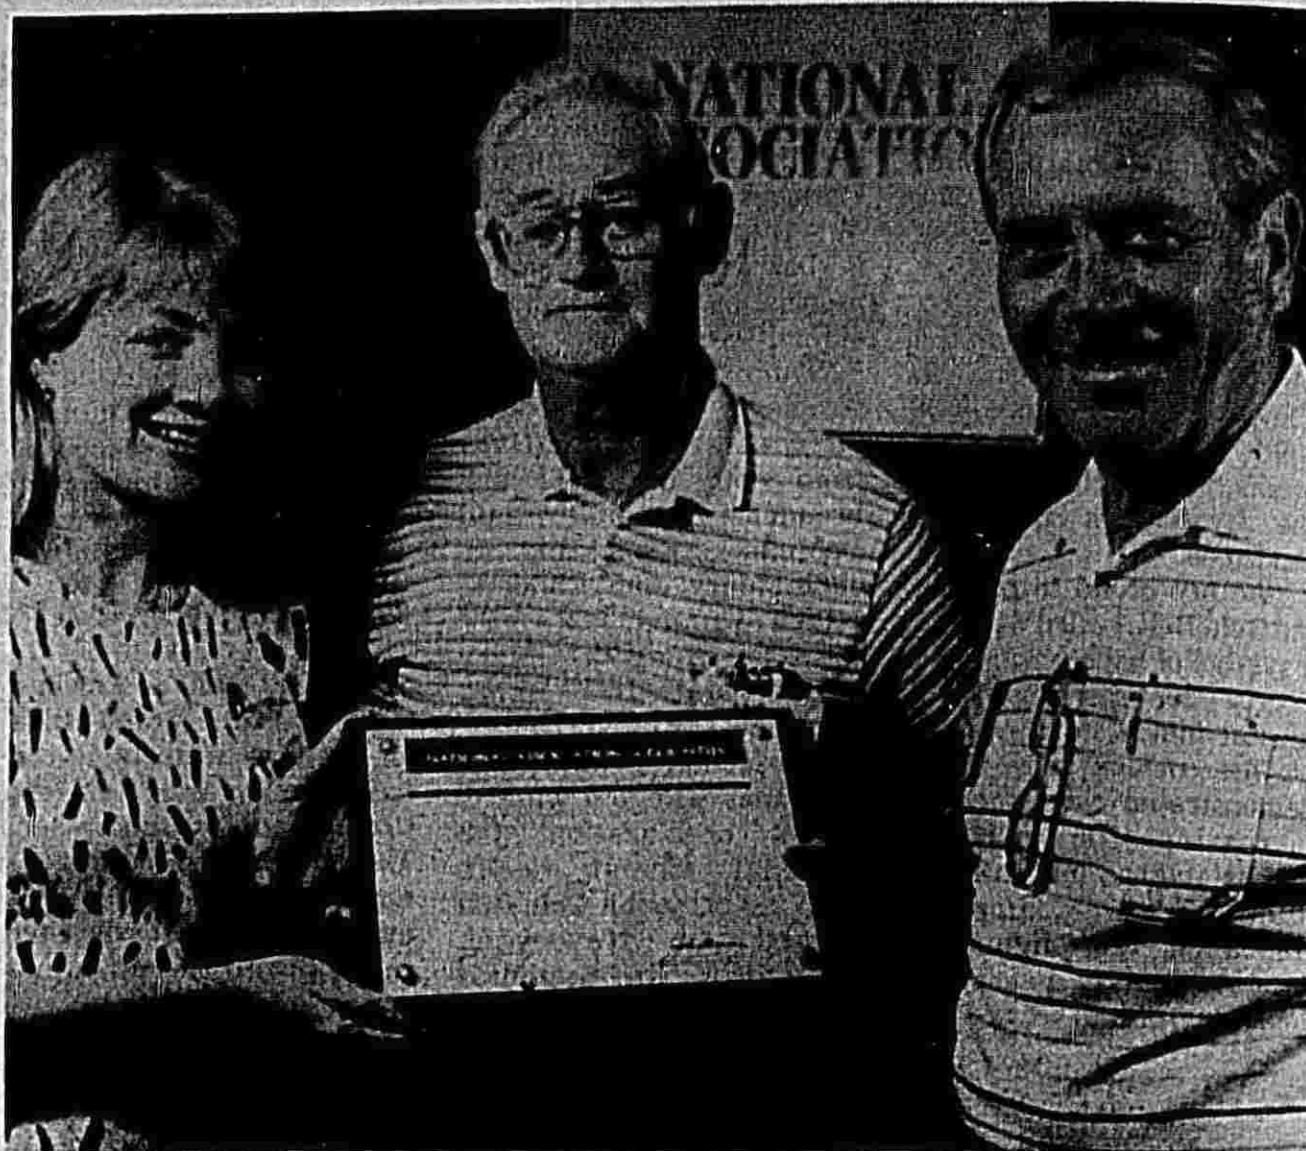

Amy Linne, Scott Robert, Kevin Patrick and Shawn Michael.

Cindy is a graduate of Woodland Grade School and Warren High. The Demmings met and married during college days.

NIMC's Yellow Brick Rd., special kids' hospital tour

The Northern Illinois Medical Center, McHenry, announces that Yellow Brick Road, NIMC's seventh annual children's health fair, has been set for the week of Oct. 5 through Oct. 10.

Children may come to Yellow Brick Road from Monday, Oct. 4 through Thursday, Oct. 9, by appointment only with their teacher and classmates.

On Saturday, Oct. 10, the program will be open to the public 9 a.m. to 2 p.m. Reservations are not required for that date. The Saturday session is good for families, Cub Scout or Brownie troops, or other child-centered organizations.

Schools were not scheduled prior to Sept. 15. In-person registration was available on Sept. 15 from 4 to 6 p.m. at the Public Relations office, NIMC, in the annex of the Professional Arts Building, across the hallway from the laboratory.

One teacher may represent all the classes in the grade she teaches in a given school. The representative who schedules the children must be a teacher.

Telephone registration has been taken since Sept. 16, and will be through Sept. 18, if there are openings, from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m.

If necessary, an additional day will be added to Yellow Brick Road and classes will be scheduled for Monday, Oct. 12.

Whether or not a teacher is scheduled, NIMC requests that any teacher interested in the 1988 program send his/her home address to the public relations department to develop a direct mailing list for future children's events.

Yellow Brick Road is an annual "Trip Through Oz" during which children learn what happens to patients in the hospital. The children visit "departments," prepared just for them which represent admitting, laboratory services, respiratory therapy, pediatrics, surgery, emergency and medical imaging (radiology).

Tour guides include the Wizard of Oz characters, and patients are teddy bears and other familiar faces. The "real professionals" calm their fears about time spent in a hospital setting.

For the first time ever Yellow Brick Road will take place in a huge white circus tent on site at NIMC, Rte. 31 and Bull Valley Rd., and the NIMC helicopter will be included in the tour.

The program is most effective when presented to children in kindergarten through second grade, and only teachers who work with that age group are allowed to schedule children during the week. All other children are invited to attend the health fair on Saturday, Oct. 10.

This free health fair is an educational experience for all who attend, regardless of age, and the children receive many things to take home to remind them that a hospital need not be a frightening place but a caring place where people receive help when they are ill or injured.

DOCTORS FORUM

Until recently, mere mention of the word "impotence" was all but taboo. Nearly ten million males were forced to suffer silently with a serious problem. They had nowhere to turn for help. North Point Male Sexual Dysfunction Clinic was among the first medical facilities to reach out to this suffering segment of the population. In 1983, the clinic initiated a comprehensive Male Sexual Dysfunction Program. The program offers analysis, counseling and treatment to patients across the U.S.

Doctors now believe close to 50% of all the men suffering from impotence have a correctable physical problem. This is a radical departure from the earlier belief that impotence is usually psychologically induced.

"North Point practices a sensitive, professional approach to treating impotence," says Dr. Raza Khan, Board Certified Urologist and Consultant to the Male Sexual Dysfunction Clinic. "The first hurdle is to get the patient to come forth and seek help as he would for other ailments." Once enrolled in the program, the patient participates in a series of tests to determine whether his problem is physical or psychological. This includes psychological analysis as well as hormonal, neurologic, urologic and vascular testing.

The clinic also conducts Nocturnal Penile Tumescence Studies. The patient spends an entire night in a special sleep laboratory. An average adult male will experience three to five erections during a normal night's sleep. North Point's Sleep Lab utilizes sophisticated monitors to measure a patient's erections during the night. If his impotence is not physical, erections should take place.

"A thorough diagnosis at the clinic takes approximately three days," says Khan. "At that time, the cause of most impotence cases can be determined. The treatment counseling is the next step."

Psychological problems may be treated by an expert on the North Point Staff or referred to a doctor in the patient's home territory. Physical treatments vary according to the diagnosis. North Point Male Sexual Dysfunction Clinic is qualified and successful in performing all. These can range from hormone injections to medications or even surgery. For more information or a free information packet, call (312) 872-8922.

The Doctor Forum is brought to you as a public service from the Barings Medical Center, in Antioch, Illinois. For more information call (312) 872-8922.

DON'T LET IMPOTENCE KEEP YOU APART

It's difficult to confront a sexual problem.

Impotence...the word alone makes us uneasy. So we conceal. We avoid. But the fact is, most problems can not only be treated, but cured.

You can have a healthy, satisfying sex life, at almost any age, despite almost any problem. And that's what the North Point Male Sexual Dysfunction Clinic is all about. Reaching people on a very personal level to define and then treat the dysfunction.

Our resources are exceptional from counseling and therapy for psychologically related problems, to breakthrough medical and surgical procedures for a physical dysfunction. Our board certified staff, ensures professional, thoroughly private care. And you'll find a supportive atmosphere for partners to talk through and heal emotional rifts.

The North Point Male Sexual Dysfunction Clinic is more than a sophisticated medical and research facility...it's a place for simple understanding of human relations in sexuality. We believe that virtually everyone has the potential for a satisfying sex life. That's the truth. And it's time we all stop hiding it.

Orchard life is sweet for Breedens

by KAREN WILTBERGER

Apple season is officially here and for the next six weeks Rick and Nancy Breedens will find themselves amongst 125,000 apple-picking customers of the Wauconda Apple Orchards.

"You know the old saying, 'You have to make hay when the sun shines.' Well, now the sun is shining," said Rick, 26, the youngest of five children of Dick and Marge Breedens, who started the orchard as a hobby in 1951.

McIntosh apples opened the season on Sept. 10 and will soon be followed by Jonathan on Sept. 24, Red Delicious on Oct. 1 and Golden Delicious on Oct. 8. Pick-your-own bushels are $15, half-bushels are $7.50. (May this relieve a few of those inquiring phone calls.)

After more than 35 years building the 13th largest attraction in Lake County, Dick and Marge prefer to be in the background of their son and daughter. "They're the ones who are taking over. It's their ballgame now," said Marge.

But Dick, according to his son, was an entrepreneur at heart when he plunged into the apple orchard business. After receiving a business degree from Northwestern in 1938, he knew he had no experience in farming, but he wanted to be in business and in the outdoors. Dick originally started to grow corn on 75 acres he purchased in the early 1940s, but the soil proved to poor for corn.

"My dad didn't know the first thing in what he was doing," Rick explained. "He would literally have the book on the wheel telling him how to hook up the plow."

Dick's father, then a teacher at Lane Tech, suggested that apples might do well on the soil. Five years later Dick hired a farm manager and in 1968 he moved from Glenview into a house in the center of the orchard. In 1973, he retired from his 30-year-old association management business in Glenview to be at the orchards full-time.

Today Wauconda Orchards has 175 acres of apple trees, 12 acres of raspberries and eight acres of strawberries. Nancy and Rick live in their own homes on the orchard.

Rick and Nancy Breedens

An old-fashioned country market lined with homemade preserves, taffy apples, cheeses and sausages greet today's otherwise fast-paced society. Customers can take a moment to browse, visit an indoor beehive or munch on a homemade doughnut and sip on a cup of "Old Rick" apple cider.

A NAPA-SUWE logo sign hangs outside the store casting a shadow near a collection of antiques, including an ice cutter, ringer washer and cider and wine press. The logo is short for the four Breedens daughters: Nancy, Pat, Sue and Wendy.

Japanese firm moves line to U.S.

Echo Incorporated, a Japanese-parented outdoor power equipment company headquartered in Lake Zurich, will reduce costs and improve its competitive position in the U.S. market by producing and assembling goods in the U.S.

Echo, ranked in Economic World's "Top 100 Japanese Firms in the U.S." in December, 1986, will now manufacture 80 percent of its products sold in the U.S. and import only 20 percent of its goods from its parent company, Kioritz Corp. of Tokyo.

With consistent annual growth, Echo's annual sales are now upwards of $100 million. Like many other Japanese concerns, Echo faces a major challenge due to the changing relationship between the yen and the dollar.

This may be an upcoming trend of U.S.-based Japanese manufacturers in light of the yen's 22-month steady appreciation. Echo, a marketing-oriented company, is taking a progressive position to further improve upon its product innovations, competitive position, and industry-setting standards. The company will move its Japanese-based manufacturing machinery to the U.S. in

Meyers provides tips for job hunters

by GARY S. MEYERS

The real national pastime is not football or baseball but getting a new job. This week The Meyers Report answers readers' questions and provides tips for today's job hunter.

Q. Recently, I replied to an advertisement in the paper about employment in the airline industry. I was told that there were a lot of jobs and that with my background I shouldn't have any trouble obtaining one. However, I was also told to send $41 and wait a week to receive my application materials before I could apply for employment with any of the airlines. I only have enough money for five weeks without work. What should I do?—Up in the Air Looking for a Job

A. First off, don't wait. You can apply for a job with any airline and it won't cost you a dime.

The help-wanted ad you answered was really a solicitation from an employment agency that wanted you to pay for its services. There is nothing wrong with this type of solicitation if it is open and above board.

There are only about 80 airlines nationwide and far fewer major ones. By sending out 10 or 12 resumes and letters, you could be in contact with all the airlines in your area for about $2.20—and you won't have to wait.

"We receive thousands of applications every week and we do not require any outside employment service," said Bruce Hicks, vice president of corporate communications for Continental Airlines in Houston. "Our application process does not require any specific knowledge that cannot be obtained from our personnel office."

A spokesperson for Chicago-based United Airlines confirmed that it is not necessary to go through an employment agency.

Try applying for reservation and sales representative positions. On your resume, highlight any sales experience that you have had. This is the quickest way to get your foot in the door, according to the United spokesperson. If you have office experience, there are numerous clerical jobs as well.

Q. I am a 33-year-old accountant with two years' experience. Before that, I worked as a supervisor and pipe fitter's apprentice at a large steel company. How should I classify this experience on my resume? Also, where on my resume should I put that I passed the Certified Public Accountant test?—CPA Who Does Plumbing

A. Your previous work experience is not really unrelated to your present position, since it shows your ability to motivate and manage groups of people. Although a background in pipe fitting might seem irrelevant for an accounting job, the work skills you gained are an asset to prospective employers.

"It is not so important where a person has been," said Neal Price, assistant director of audit recruiting at the accounting firm of Arthur Andersen in Chicago. "For people with little accounting experience, what really matters are characteristics such as leadership and willingness to learn."

As a matter of fact, for many jobs, most Big Eight accounting firms prefer to hire people with limited accounting experience. "We are looking to mold employees to fit our system," said Price.

If you seek employment in a smaller industrial or service-oriented firm, your broad experience may just land you the job over another candidate whose only work experience is in accounting. Employers value diversity and the ability to handle new situations.

The fact that you passed the CPA exam proves you have the necessary knowledge for accounting. If you want an accounting job, put your CPA designation to high and mighty.

Q. As a woman returning to the workforce after an absence of more than six years, how should I handle the subject of references?

A. Most prospective employers want only three references, only one which need be a former employer. Though you have not worked for six years, you probably have useful references.

"Most women believe that just because they were not paid for a job that is not valuable," said Sue Nebel, director of career development for Women Employed in Chicago. "Consider references you may have developed from your volunteer or community work experience."

Friends and former co-workers, even if they are no longer living in your area, can also act as references. If your former employer does not remember you or if you did not have a very good relationship, just explain that to the person requesting your references.

Until you locate a permanent position, try working for a temporary agency. On the job, you might just meet someone who may give you a good reference or better yet—a job!

Credit Union

Consumers Cooperative Credit Union has just opened its Mundelein branch building on a three acre site and will serve as a full-service facility.

School Aid

The Ill. Supreme Court has agreed to release $117 million that will pave the way for the release of $146 million in school aid payments. The $117 million was being held in a protest account concerning a lawsuit challenging the constitutionality of a state tax on long distance phone calls.

Illinois Bell repair technician Willie Robles of Waukegan uses a hand-held computer, nicknamed CAT for Craft Access Terminal, when responding to a repair call. CAT puts all the information technicians need to respond to customer repair calls right at their fingertips. In-the-field portable computer proved especially useful when record rains deluged Chicago area by saving time and increasing efficiency.

"Woodland Meadow's buyer profile consists of a wide variety of lifestyles in the age range of 28 to 45," said James Coughlin, director of sales and marketing for Residential. "The community's convenient location to the growing north suburban high-tech corridor has drawn many dual career couples, professional singles and young families."

In addition to better housing values, Woodland Meadows provides an ideal location for working couples and growing families. Convenient transportation provides east access to major routes, highways, rail systems and airports. Car rally to recreate glimpse of long ago

A glimpse of long ago will be recreated when the 10th annual Classic Car Rally takes place on Saturday and Sunday, Sept. 26 and 27, in Lake Geneva.

Over 500 classic, antique and special interest autos will converge on the area from all parts of the Midwest to support the American Cancer Society. Advance registrations are ahead of any past rally.

The unusual event is sponsored by the Corinne Kreissl Memorial Foundation, Inc., with the cooperation of American Cancer Society volunteers, Geneva Lake Area Chamber of Commerce, Americana Lake Geneva Resort, Lake Geneva Rotary Club and Walworth County CB Radio Club. Over $5,000 in prizes await the winners of the around-the-lake tour for children's cancer research. The host site for the event is the Americana, one mile east of downtown Lake Geneva.

Registration for the rally is from 2 to 8 p.m. on Saturday or 8 a.m. to 11 p.m. on Sunday at the Americana Ski Chalet.

Stops in five zones around the lake include Americana Lake Geneva Resort, Silvano's, Mar's Resort, French Country Inn, Gollwitzer's, Bay Shore, Stevenson's III, Open Board, Chuck's Maple Ridge Inn, and Buttons Bay Inn. Saturday participants need not attend Sunday's event to be eligible for rally participation prizes.

The Classic Car Rally will again feature a grand car show finale at Americana Ski Chalet on Sunday at noon. Prizes, trophies, consolation prizes and dash plaques to participants will be awarded at 2 p.m. after winners for both days are determined.

Admission to the car show is free; however, donations are accepted and a souvenir badge donation will provide shuttle bus transportation to the show site.

Last year's event brought over 550 vehicles and raised $14,000. Since the event was originated in 1978, almost $75,000 has been raised for childhood cancer research, in memory of Corinne Kreissl.

Participants can pre-register by mail by contacting the American Cancer Society, P.O. Box 732, Lake Geneva, 53147. Pre-registration forms are also available at the Geneva Lake Area Chamber of Commerce and all participating locations. For additional information, call (414) 248-3536 or (414) 275-2050.

National power boat race at Halings on Sept. 20

The American Power Boat Assn. of Detroit has accepted the bid from the Graet Lakes Boat Club to hold the North American Championships at Halings Resort and Marina on Grass Lake in Antioch on Sunday, Sept. 20, from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m.

Drivers from Canada and Mexico have been invited to compete against the best the U.S. has to offer.

Outboard performance craft racing hulls will show speeds from 50 to over 100 mph. Seven classes of boats will run, which can use any brand of outboard engine in the world. Product identity must be displayed.

To reach the race site, follow Rte. 59 to Grass Lake Rd. Take Grass Lake Rd. west two miles to Haling Rd., and turn right to race site.

Pullman is doing
'Vanities'

Three local actresses—Pamela D. Orlando and Val Kelly, both of Wauconda, and Marge Nichols of Libertyville—will dazzle Grand Hotel theatergoers with their performance in Jack Heifner's bittersweet, true-to-life comedy, "Vanities."

After a summer's absence, the Pullman Players will provocatively reappear on stage at The Grand Hotel in Wauconda with an intimate display of the evolving friendship between three young women as their lives unfold from the innocence of high school to the reality of adulthood.

Spanning from the early '60s to the '70s, the play will throb with the music, styles and attitudes of those rebellious years as the characters react to the changing times.

"This play will be more than a play...it will be a music review of some of the best music of the '60s and '70s," according to show producer Kendall Wells.

Wells and director Dean Ogren, a Wauconda native-turned-Chicagoan, have been researching the music together. They have come up with a soundtrack that will make the characters come to life to such tunes as "Blue Velvet," "My Boyfriend's Back," "On Broadway," as well as the smash hits of the Beatles, Elton John, Jefferson Airplane and Billy Joel.

Kelly and Nichols are making their stage debut in "Vanities," while Orlando has performed with the Pullman Players, the Woodstock Musical Theatre Co. and the Mundelein Kirk Players.

The five-weekend show will open on Friday, Sept. 18, and close on Oct. 17. The curtain will rise promptly at 8:30 p.m.

'Place' starts
Kirk's season

The Kirk Players 22nd Subscription Series Selections will begin on Oct. 2 and 3 with the delightful comedy, "This Must Be The Place." This hilarious concoction of confusion written by Mark Ferris will have everyone rolling in the aisle asking who is who, what is what and why, for goodness sake!

Then, a little mystery to chill and intrigue, "Monique," written by Dorothy and Michael Blankfort will be presented on Nov. 20 and 21. Here is the perfect murder. Can it possibly be solved? The answer will astound everyone.

March 4 and 5 will bring yet another fun filled show called "Light Up The Sky." Author Moss Hart takes us backstage for a closer look at the goings-on behind the flats and in the dressing rooms.

What a better way to top off this winning season, but to present 1986's most popular community theatre show! Lee Calcheim's "Breakfast With Les and Bess" is a charming light hearted comedy, one that will warm and delight you. It will be presented April 29 and 30.

Season tickets are available, two adults, four shows, $18, or bring the whole family for only $24.

ROCK TRACKS

By Rob Ferrus

The charts have a bit of a Spanish flavor this week. Los Lobos' "La Bamba," the first song sung entirely in a foreign language to hit No. 1 since the Singing Nun's "Dominique" in 1963, jumped into the numero uno spot this week. And Madonna's "Who's That Girl," which is part English and part Spanish, dropped from number one to number two.

"La Bamba" is late songwriter Ritchie Valens' first number one hit. His previously highest-charting single was "Donna," which peaked at No. 2 in February, 1959 — three weeks after he died in a plane crash with Buddy Holly and The Big Bopper.

Director/producer Taylor Hackford has now had five number one hits taken from one of his movies. Two of them ("Say You, Say Me" and "Up Where We Belong") won Oscars for best song. The other two ("Against All Odds" and "Separate Lives") were nominated for best song. The fifth is "La Bamba," which, unfortunately, won't be eligible because it's an oldie, but it does mark the first time that a Hackford film has produced a top-five soundtrack album, jumping to number four this week.

Although Madonna's "Who's That Girl" has dropped one slot, I don't think she has any worries about losing fans. Her current concert and lingerie fashion-show tour of Great Britain is being received with an hysteria reminiscent of The Beatles' concerts. The rock fans of England may be enthusiastic, but the more retiring establishment has other opinions. Said one Parliament member, "This is nonsense. I hope the British taxpayers aren't footing the bill for all of the inconvenience she's causing here," referring to the royal treatment she's been receiving (police have been stopping traffic for the passage of her limousine, etc.). One city councilor, annoyed by the overcrowding and noise created by Madonna's visit, referred to her as a "hyped-up tart." A lot of this animosity, understandably, is a result of the superstar's refusal to accept an audience with the royal family. "If the Queen wants to see me," said Madonna, "she can come to one of my concerts."

Local artists sell works

Nippersink Dist. Library is adding original works by local artists to its collection.

The Northern Illinois Library System collection of art reproductions has long been popular with Nippersink Library patrons. At its August meeting, the Library Board of Trustees voted to add area art works to this popular collection and make them also available for checkout.

The first two additions to the collection are two colored pencil drawings done by Don Donnic Sherfinsky of Time Was Antiques in Richmond. His works are on display at the Mill Inn in Richmond and at the Eye of the Unicorn in Lake Geneva. He lives in Pell Lake.

Elizabeth DiJohn of Spring

Grove will also be among the featured artists. Her oils and pastels have recently been on display at PM&L Theatre in Antioch.

The library's art collection can be checked out for four weeks at a time. Besides the artwork displayed in the library, patrons can order prints from the library system. The library has a catalog of over 150 slides showing what is available through interlibrary loan.

Stage 2's season to open with regional premiere

In its first two seasons, Stage Two Theatre has produced several area premieres, including the Chicago regional premiere of Hugh Whitmore's play, "Pack of Lies."

For its third season, Stage Two is opening with the world premiere of Chicago playwright William Rosen's "Dark Outlines."

"We're very proud to bring a world premiere to Lake County," stated Bryan W. Simon, executive director of the group. "In the last two years, Stage Two has attempted to provide a challenging theater experience for the Lake County audience as well as for the company."

"Dark Outlines" is an explosive and haunting play full of off-beat humor and touching insights. It is the story of Elliot, a man who is plagued by sudden and uncontrollable outbursts of outrageous behavior, always at the worst possible moments. The play will open in January at the College of Lake County in Grayslake.

Scheduled for May is John Pielmeier's play, "Agnes of God." This play is the story of three women who are forced to face some harsh realities in their lives, and to reexamine the meaning of faith and the commitment of love.

In late August, Stage Two will host its first one-act festival, when new works as well as established plays will be featured.

Also planned by the company are free staged readings. "We plan on doing as many original works as possible," stated Simon. "Stage Two has always felt that Lake County is an excellent area to premiere a play."

Season tickets are currently available for as little as $10. Information may be obtained by contacting Stage Two at (312) 662-4071.

Conversation on video vs. going to the movie

☒ YES
☐ NO

A while ago in this column, I shared a conversation I had with a friend who just deplored going out to a movie. Again recently I had an opportunity to discuss the pros and cons of modern movie going with him.

"Yeah, I just hate getting the wife and family together and head out to a movie, and there just ain't (sic.) no way you're going to convince me otherwise," he responded when I tried to bring up the subject again.

"I must admit," I said to him, "you do have some very good points in your argument. But listen to me for just one minute and I'll try to explain my point of view as to the advantages of going out to see a film." I looked to him and held my breath as he sat back in the seat at the restaurant counter. He took his orange and yellow Case tractor hat off, proceeded to wipe his brow with his sleeve and finally motioned to me that I could say my piece. "Thank you," I replied to his positive response to my plea, and I began to elicit my views on the subject. "To begin with, there is the argument that in order to properly respond to a director's cinematographic presentation, his work must first be experienced in all its proper technical proportions. By this I mean that there are certain audio and visual techniques that are used by the talented director to enhance a film's plot or action. These techniques are best appreciated in the environment of a large theatre. The stereo sound tracks that heighten many modern film scores were explicitly contrived to compliment the acoustics of the large movie palace. These and other sonic effects are difficult, if not impossible, to duplicate at home on the inferior audio systems incorporated in most televisions and video equipment. If one adds to this the sheer scope of a large screen and its importance in the proper reproduction in detail of the modern photographic image, then one can begin to appreciate how those very aspects of a film that are most vital in the telling of a story can often be lost when viewed at home on a television. Films the technical caliber of Stanley Kubrick's '2001: A Space Odyssey', or Orson Welles' 'Citizen Kane', are virtually impossible to fully appreciate when viewed at home on the small screen. Don't you agree?" I paused as I looked to my friend for agreement. "No, I don't think so," he answered.

The time has come to sort through and respond to some of the massive amounts of mail that have been piling up here at the "Lakeland Cinema" offices. This housecleaning chore is being done so that my colleague and I will again be able to see over the tops of our desks, not to mention the fact there was nothing playing that we felt like seeing this week.

Since my partner is busy with other things, I will take on the task of answering some of the mail. Naturally, due to the large volume received (In fact, here comes another truckload) personal replies are impossible.

Dear Matt and Bill: I read your column every week and I am dying to know what you guys look like? Could you satisfy my curiosity? I have enclosed a color photo of myself for your benefit. Sincerely, Brooke Shields.

Reply: Unfortunately, no pictures of us are available at this time but let me put it this way: People constantly stop me on the street and say "Hey! You and Newman were great in 'The Sting', man!"

As for my partner, people stop him on the street and say "Hey! You're in my way, man! Move it!"

Dear Matt: Whatever you do, don't let that other guy read this. I think you and I would make a great team. What do you say I drop the fat guy like a hot potato and you ditch that loser you're stuck with and you and I do a show together? I'll even give you top billing, occasionally. Sincerely, Gene Siskel.

Reply: Listen, Gene baby, Matt is definitely not interested. We are a team and that's the way it's going to stay. Now don't bother us again or I'll pull out what's left of your hair and hit you so hard it'll knock out your whole family. Besides, you wouldn't want that thing between you, Donna Rice and Gene Shalit to be leaked to the papers, would you?

Dear Matt and Bill: I don't believe you guys really get any mail. I think you make up all those letters. In fact, I'll bet you even made up this letter, too, didn't you? Come on, admit it! Sincerely, Andy Rooney.

Reply: Well, yes and no. Your letter we made up but the others are real. Sorry.

Dear Bill: What do you say I drop the bald eagle and you and I do a show together? Sincerely, Roger Ebert.

Reply: Roj, you've got yourself a deal (as long as my name goes first). I'm on my way.

Cede Ortel

Ingleside tot makes it to 'Little Miss' nationals

by GLORIA DAVIS

Cede Ortel of Ingleside, at the wisened old age of five, made progress in her already blooming modeling career when she won over all the photogenic competition in her age category in the Ill. Little Miss America Pageant in August.

The Illinois state contest was held, strangely enough, in Mt. Horeb, Wis. Cede was victorious over the other contestants in being named "Tiny Miss Photogenic Illinois, taking home a trophy, and a savings bond as she and her parents, Lance and Donna Ortel, headed for the national finals in Los Angeles.

The national contest was held at the Universal Sheraton at Universal City. There were 250 "Little Misses" from all over the United States vying for the national title.

Although Cede didn't place among the top 10 finalists, the "entire family had a wonderful time," said mother Donna and for Cede is was a learning experience which should prove fruitful if she proceeds further with her modeling career.

Getting to the airport need not be frustrating

by JIM WARNKEN

President, North Star Travel

Quite often, the trip to the airport can be the most frustrating part of a vacation. Even when you reach the airport, parking your car may pose another obstacle to an otherwise well-planned vacation. Maybe I can help.

If the plane is leaving early in the morning, and the trip is for a week or more, one of the many "park and stay" packages offered by O'Hare-area hotels may be just your ticket.

For not much more than the price of a room, you can drive to an airport hotel the night before, get a good night's sleep, be chauffeured to the airport the next morning, leave the car in a guarded parking lot for up to 10 days and be chauffeured back to your car upon return. If plans are such that you are leaving on an evening flight and returning late, the same plan is available with your hotel stay on your return.

If you just wish to park your car and not take advantage of the hotel stay, there are a couple of options available. If parking for more than a week, the same company which operates the hotel packages offers parking for up to 10 days for $40. The car is in a fenced-in secured lot with free transportation to and from O'Hare. If you are only going to be gone for a couple of days, many of the car rental lots on Mannheim Rd., north of the airport, offer daily rates of about $5 to $6 per day, again with transportation to the terminal at O'Hare. I found this service to be particularly comforting in the winter months. By the time you are transported back to your car, usually you'll find the heater running and the car warm for the ride home.

Parking at the airport itself is $9 a day. There are "remote" lots for $4 a day, but security is questionable and bus service to the terminals is unreliable, although many people use them with no problems at all.

If you don't wish to drive at all, Continental Air Transport offers a bus service from the Sheraton in Waukegan for about $12 each way. There are two buses in the morning and two in the afternoon on weekdays, and one in the morning and one in the afternoon on weekends.

Limo service from the Lakes area is also available for about $35 for a single traveler. Add a few dollars more for each additional passenger.

If someone is willing to drive you to the Jefferson Park elevated train, you'll miss all the traffic going into the airport and won't have to pay for parking. The "el" will take you right into the terminal and under the construction and traffic above. There are parking lots along the el tracks on Cumberland Ave. and River Rd., but I have yet to find room at either. If you've got the time, try it.

Other options are to fly out of Milwaukee or Midway. More about those airports in a future article.

"We had such a terrific time at last year's event with Diana Ditka that we thought inviting Debra and Connie would only add to the fun," said Peg O'Shea, manager, Doral Plaza. "What a great, informal way to find out what it's like to live with a real Bear!"

Barnabas Players set for 'Great Bank Robbery'

Mix together an angry fat lady, two bungling bank robbers, a small-town preacher, and a griping hypochondriac and what happens? The action and comedy that is part of "The Great Bank Robbery," the fall dinner-theater presented by The Barnabas Players.

"The Great Bank Robbery," to be performed Thursday through Saturday, Oct. 1-3, continues the Barnabas Players tradition. As its third production, it is also locally written, directed and produced.

This theater group is committed to creating new drama using local talent that communicates from a unique perspective.

This two-act comic drama is similar to its first production, "Gordy Goes To College." It is light-hearted, fast-paced with an ample sprinkling of zany characters. The comedy suddenly turns to drama in the second act as a hostage situation turns ugly.

"The Great Bank Robbery" focuses on the desperate fund-raising attempt of two good-intentioned young men—Cal and Alex. They quickly find out that good intentions are not enough as everything goes haywire.

Tickets for the dinner-theater are $7.50. They must be purchased in advance at Leonard's Jewelers of Wauconda or by calling (312) 526-8254. It will be held at the Wauconda Evangelical Free Church at Rte. 176 and Anderson Rd.

10th Dist. Women's Clubs plan fashion show

"Exciting choreography by Cindy Legler and outstanding decorations by the 'Party People' of Bloomingdale promises to make an entertaining show full of surprises for everyone, said general chairman Mary Goodman of Mundelein.

"A realistic ticket price of $25 should give us a good turnout for this Cancer Society benefit," she continued.

The 10th District GFWC Illinois Federation of Women's Clubs is sponsoring the benefit for the American Cancer Society Lake County Unit. Ticket information is available from Joan Madole, Mundelein, (312) 566-8831.

Everyone parties free at Blue Suede Shoes

by GLORIA DAVIS

Anyone who doesn't believe the old adage that "Life begins at 40," should make a visit to Blue Suede shoes in Park City and see if those in that age category know how to have fun.

Upon entering the sanctum full of 1950's and '60s memorabilia, newcomers are struck by the fact that here is a night club where all the action is happening, not at the bar, but on the dance floor. Most of Blue Suede's guests spend the bulk of an evening with their backs to the bar, jitterbugging and bopping or twisting to one of the many classic jukeboxes scattered throughout the night club or the music of the deejay.

Most, but not all. Some of the typical guests between the ages of 35 and 55, are reliving their youth by trying to see if they can still keep a hula-hoop going.

The deejay spins a selection made from over 5,000 45rpm records from the confines of a real honest to goodness '57 Chevy. The front of another '57 classic greets guests as it protrudes from the outside of the building.

But don't think that owners Joe and Mike Bortz cater only to the Geritol crowd, lots of young people, some hooked on nostalgia, and others just curious and ready for an unusual good time frequent Blue Suede Shoes.

This fact, according to Joe Bortz, creates another turnabout situation because only in this environment can one see young people being taught the latest (1950's) dance steps by their elders. A lot of late pop music is also played.

The Bortz's encourage people to meet new people with another extra added attraction, the phone that sets on each table.

If one sees someone they might like to meet at another table across the room, introductions are made easier by phone when dialing the number of the table in question. The phone lights instead of ringing.

For those who love a good New Year's celebration, try going to Blue Suede Shoes on the last Saturday of the month when there is a guarantee of finding almost 300 people having a ball, party hats, noisemakers and all.

Here's the best part! Go there with someone who is celebrating their birthday that month and the party, which includes free drinks for all the birthday person's guests (unlimited), a giant birthday cake, games and prizes, is on the house for the first two hours.

Anyone having a birthday coming up can either make reservations at the coat room or by calling (312) 433-7777 ahead of time. Blue Suede will even furnish free invitations in the form of a postcard. Guests must have invitations to get in.

"We have at least 70-80 birthdays being celebrated every month," says Joe Bortz.

All this might sound a little rowdy, but not to fear — a full staff of security people keep things swinging but under control.

"In fact, it's a safe place for women to come alone. Almost half of our clientele is women, unlike a lot of other night clubs where men are in the majority," adds Joe Bortz.

So why not try a night out at the Bortz's "adult playground," there's even a giant "Pin the Tail on the Donkey" game for birthday celebrants only.

Blue Suede is open six nights a week, closed on Mondays, 8 p.m. to 2 a.m. on weekdays and until 3 a.m. on weekends. The Bortz brothers own four other Blue Suede Shoes besides the one in Park City, ones in Milwaukee, Rockford, Lombard and Burnham (Calumet City).

Holland bulbs are here, for fall planting

Americans continue to have a love affair with Dutch flowerbulbs, reports the Netherlands Flower Bulb Information Center in New York.

One in four U.S. households will have bulbs blooming on their property next spring, many of which will be planted this year.

Millions of spring-flowering tulips, daffodils, iris, hyacinths and crocus—the most familiar flower-bulbs exported from Holland—are now available from garden centers and nurseries in the area.

"We expect to ship 980 million bulbs to America this year," says the center's managing director, Frans van Nimwegen.

"Flowerbulbs have become an integral part of garden design, and Americans are very enthusiastic about planting individual flowerbulb gardens which, by style and selection, reflect their personal tastes. We call this gardening a la carte."

The center recommends these tips for "gardening a la carte":

1. With the popularity of flowerbulbs soaring, many local garden centers have set aside special Holland bulb displays with helpful information on planting that can be taken home.

2. Plan the garden. How many square feet are available this season? What kinds of bulbs are preferred?

If 20 square feet are available, try gardening a la carte with 20 Triumph tulips, 15 hyacinths, 15 small garden tulips, 15 small-cupped daffodils, 25 crocus and 25 chionodoxa or glory-of-the-snow. The more flowerbulbs planted, the more spectacular the color will be next spring.

3. Be sure to plant bulbs in well-drained soil. Poor drainage will cause the bulbs to rot.

4. Plant before the hard frosts. In southern states, plant in late November and December.

5. Plant bulbs carefully. The planting depth varies with different bulbs. A rule of thumb is to plant each bulb at twice its own height.

6. Plant smaller bulbs three inches apart and larger bulbs, such as tulips and hyacinths, six inches apart.

7. Bulbs will grow almost anywhere. Clay soils can be turned over and mixed with peat for better drainage.

The best advice of all is to ask nursery and garden center owners for assistance.

Winterize roof to protect from cold-weather damage

A properly insulated and ventilated attic can help prevent damage to a home's roof from snow, as well as help keep a house cooler and more comfortable in summer.

The CertainTeed Home Institute has found that homeowners continue to have questions about insulation, ventilation and vapor barriers. In response to this, they have compiled the following list of common questions and provided the answers.

Q: What is an ice dam, and how does it occur?

A: An ice dam is a buildup at the cornice or base of the roof. After a heavy snowfall, escaping heat from within the home can cause the snow on the roof to melt quickly. The result is that water runs down the roof, freezing at the colder edge and forming an ice dam.

Q: How can ice dam formation be prevented?

A: Proper insulation and ventilation can help, by preventing heat from escaping from the home—so that snow will melt off the roof in a slower, normal process.

Q: What is the purpose of a vapor barrier when insulating, and what type is best to use?

A: In every household, occupants generate moisture that is carried through the air as water vapor. Cooking, washing and even breathing raise the moisture content in the air. The interior moisture tries to pass through the exterior walls to equalize with the dry, cold air outside.

Vapor barriers prevent moisture from becoming trapped in the wall cavity where it can collect and cause damage. There are several types of vapor barriers to use when insulating; however, most homeowners prefer installing insulation with the vapor barrier attached, such as CertainTeed Kraft-Faced Fiber Glass Insulation.

Q: Is it necessary to fix tears in a vapor barrier? Will duct or polyvinyl tape work?

A: Yes, by all means. Vapor barriers must be continuous and uninterrupted to stop moisture-laden air from going into the stud cavity and out through the wall. Obviously, if there is a hole in the vapor barrier, it will not be as efficient. Polyvinyl or duct tape are the best bets for fixing tears in vapor barriers.

Q: What does R-value stand for?

A: R-value is the resistance to heat flow of a material. When evaluating the energy efficiency of insulation, it's important to look at R-value, not just thickness. The higher the R-value, the greater the insulation power and the greater your potential energy savings.

Q: What is the most common ventilation method?

A: The natural or static ventilation system. It consists of simple vent openings in the attic. These can be a combination of ridge, gable, roof or eave vents.

Q: How much ventilation should be provided when insulating?

A: Regardless of the types of vents a house has, as a basic guide there should be one square foot inlet and one square foot outlet for each 150 square feet of ceiling area when there is no vapor barrier in the ceiling.

If the ceiling does have a vapor barrier, provide one square foot inlet and one square foot outlet for each 300 square feet of ceiling area.

Professionals give tips for decorating on budget

Lilly Burt had a problem—her apartment. The low rent made her basement one-bedroom a great deal, but there were only two small windows, and the dungeon-like gloom was getting to her. What was the struggling graduate student to do?

Lilly's case is just one of the many real-life "decorating dilemmas" solved in Karen Fisher's recent book, "Decorating Your First Apartment" (Fawcett/Combine).

A former decorating editor at Cosmopolitan, Esquire and American Home, Fisher is the author of a number of decorating books and the founder of Decorator Previews, a New York City-based agency that matches clients with independent decorators who can best serve their needs.

The more than 60 designers who work through the agency charge $75 an hour and up for their services. Fisher's new book offers the same kind of usually high-priced advice to the newly married, newly divorced, newly graduated and others who need to make the most of a small space and a tight budget.

It guides the beginner through each step of the process of decorating an apartment, from setting priorities and drawing up a floorplan and a budget, to choosing window treatments, maximizing storage space and putting the finishing touches on the castle.

Her money-saving tips cover everything from 19th century country furniture to industrial shelving and reading lamps. The goal is to achieve an expensive-looking effect at a fraction of the normal cost, by dint of sweat and creativity.

The book describes a number of real-life problems and offers inexpensive solutions, drawing on the decorator's years of experience.

In Lilly's case, the decorating team of Paul Shafer and Jean Weiner created a fake skylight using a cluster of ceiling lights covered with a laminated rice paper and plywood frame. The "skylight" looked almost like the real thing and cost just over $50.

Other common problems solved for the reader include:

Storage stretching: Lorraine couldn't fit another thing into her cramped studio. Shafer and Weiner angled the doors of her closet across a corner to allow more storage space and put shelves on the back of the closet doors.

Since there was a long hall into the main room, they created a "portico" made of storage columns at the entrance to the room.

The columns, which looked dramatic from the front door, were made up of shelves that faced into the main room and held the TV and stereo equipment.

—Making a room do double duty: Decorator Gerald

Kuhn explains how he solved this common problem himself. Kuhn needed a home office and didn't have a spare room, so he put the office in his bedroom. This meant sleeping in the living room.

Kuhn didn't like sofa beds, but he didn't want a four-poster in the middle of the room, either. He carpeted a platform bed and got quilted covers for the mattress and pillows in the same color. The result: A sophisticated lounging area by day, a bed by night.

Fisher's decorating service has been featured in The New York Times, New York magazine and House Beautiful, to name only a few. So what inspired her to write a book for the rank beginner?

"I made every imaginable mistake decorating my first apartment," Fisher said. "I see my book as a way to help people who are starting from scratch to avoid making the same mistakes I made."

Makes DeVry List

John Paukstis of Mundelein has been named to the dean's list at DeVry Institute of Technology in Lombard. To be eligible for the dean's list, students must have between a 3.0 and 3.49 grade point average (out of a possible 4.0) for the last term of study. Paukstis, a student in the Electronics Engineering Program, has a 3.1 grade point average.

Woodgrain adds beauty

Anilene-dyed woodgrain laminates from Nevamar's Faux Bois Collection are a popular choice and are perfect for mixing and matching. Exotic green birds eye pattern and rose renaissance oak (the style of the unique table above) are creating textural 'chic' for the home.

A colorful aquarium brightens any home

Vinyl siding

One of the most popular American siding materials, vinyl siding never needs painting and cannot corrode or dent like aluminum. Nor will it chip, peel or rot like wood.

It beautifully brightens a dark corner, adds life to an empty wall, and adds a unique decorative touch to any room. It also makes a great pet, as well as a wonderful conversation piece.

In fact, a recent study by researchers at the University of Pennsylvania concluded it is even beneficial in relieving stress. What is it? It is an aquarium filled with tropical fish.

Owing a home aquarium obviously has many positive benefits. Throughout the U.S., 10 million aquariums are being enjoyed in homes, offices, restaurants and hotels.

Undoubtedly you have seen at least one and may have wondered, "How do I or my youngsters (Kids love tropical fish and easily get involved in the simple maintenance) get started?"

First, you will want to locate a good dealer in your area. If you have a friend who has an aquarium, ask for a reference; otherwise the phone book lists most tropical fish retailers.

During your visit to a tropical fish store, you will want to get some idea of aquarium sizes and of the equipment you will need, and look over the selection of the fish so that you can choose the ones you will want to keep.

It is advisable to purchase a book that provides complete instructions on setting up and maintaining an aquarium.

One basic rule to follow, however, is to buy the largest aquarium possible since, the greater the water environment, the less chance of water problems.

When determining where to put your aquarium, several factors should be considered. You will not want to put it in direct sunlight, since this will cause algae to grow on the glass and plastic accessories.

You will also not want to put it on your best carpeting since, during water changes, it is possible for some water to splash on the floor, and you will be sure to want to put it on a firm stand since water is heavy.

After you have decided on the aquarium, your first accessory will be a tightly fitting canopy cover equipped with a florescent fixture. Fluorescent fixtures throw off a cool light and will not cause fluctuations in the water temperature.

While on the subject of the water temperature, tropical fish require an environment maintained at around 75 degree F (25 degree C). You will therefore need a good heater and an aquarium thermometer.

A recent development in this technology is the liquid crystal digital thermometer which affixes to the outside of the aquarium yet measures most accurately the water temperature.

You will also need a quality filter. Your dealer can give you proper advice since there are several types of filters and your needs will vary with the size of your aquarium. If you are going to keep a lot of fish, you will also want a separate air pump to add oxygen to the water.

Brighten your home with a colorful, lively aquarium that will provide hours of enjoyment for the entire family. To help you get started, the experts at Tetra are offering an informative, full-color illustrated starter booklet. For a free copy, write Tetra Sales, 201 Tabor Rd., Morris Plains, NJ 07950.

Decorating an aquarium is great fun. There are multi-colored gravels, highly decorative backgrounds and hundreds of ornaments, as well as plastic plants so real in reproduction it's almost impossible to distinguish them from live plants. Most good retailers will have a complete assortment, and your selection should be based on the size of your aquarium and the amount of money you decide to spend.

Once you have set up your aquarium, you should add a chlorine neutralizer to the water and add only a few fish initially. These few fish will help develop the proper biological conditions necessary to maintain a fully stocked aquarium.

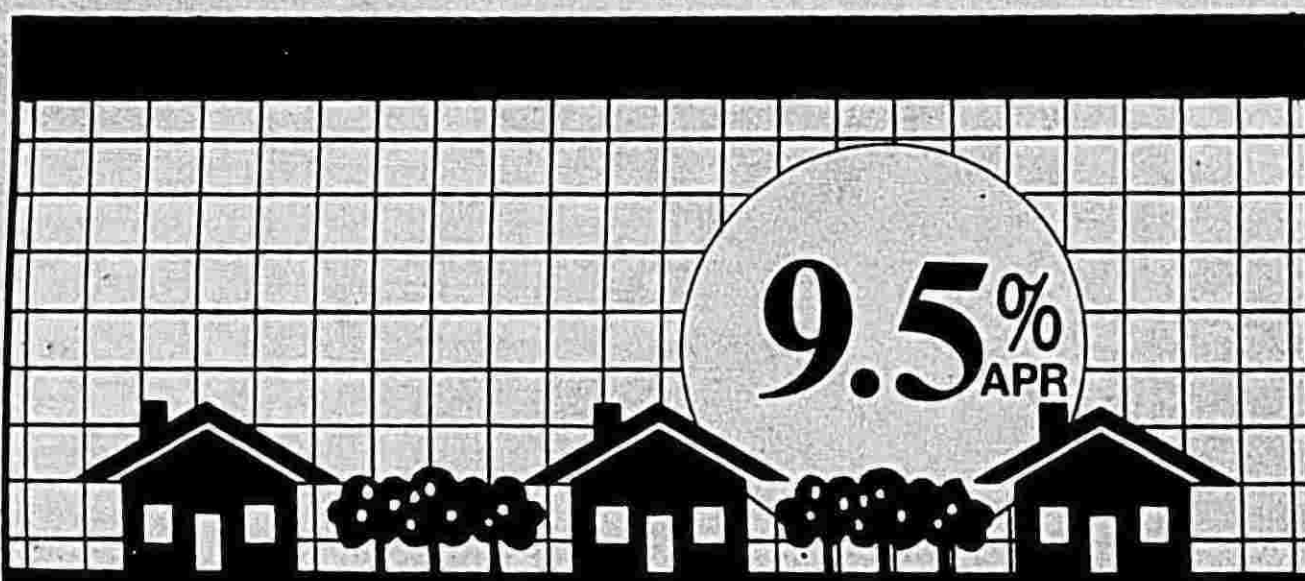

After three to four weeks, assuming everything is functioning properly, you can then go ahead and add the rest of your fish.

Aquarium maintenance is a lot simpler than people think. Every two weeks a partial water change (not greater than 20 percent) by siphoning the water from the bottom of the aquarium is all that is required.

A device called the HydroClean allows an efficient siphoning by separating the debris in the gravel and removing it with the water from the aquarium. On a monthly basis, your filter will require minimal maintenance. That's all there is.

Following this simple routine, chances of fish disease or any other aquarium problems are remote. In fact, one of the biggest problems people have is spending too much time maintaining their aquarium. On a daily basis, of course, fish should be fed and a good quality flake food.

Cleaning with baking soda: A fresh start for fall

Fall is the time for returning to routines. The kids go back to school, the pace picks up at work, and community meetings and activities that were put on hold for the summer resume again. For many people, it's also time to return to the routine of cleaning the house.

A good place to start is with the kitchen, which could probably use some freshening up after the hot, sticky summer. A solution of Arm & Hammer Baking Soda will clean and deodorize kitchen appliances.

It is effective at dissolving grease and dirt and absorbing odors, yet it is non-abrasive, so it won't scratch appliance finishes.

Here are some helpful cleaning tips from Arm & Hammer Baking Soda to put kitchens back in shape after a summer hiatus:

Dishwasher - For dishwashers, use the standard solution of four tbsp. baking soda and one quart of water to clean food film which may accumulate along the inside of the dishwasher door. Also wipe down the outside of the dishwasher.

When adding dirty dishes, sprinkle a handful (1 cup) of baking soda on the bottom of the dishwasher to keep it fresh and free of odors between loads. It's a great way to save on energy bills, too, because the dishwasher is run only when it's full.

Microwave Ovens - To clean and deodorize microwave interiors and exteriors, mix a solution to two tbsp. baking soda and two cups of water. Be sure to also clean the rubber seal around the door to ensure that it closes tightly and prevents microwaves from escaping.

For stubborn odors, leave an open box of baking soda inside, but be sure to remove the baking soda before using the oven!

Don't forget to wipe down food processors, mixers, toaster ovens and blenders, too, with the standard solution of baking soda.

Refrigerators - For refrigerators as well as freezers, get into the habit of following this easy baking soda cleaning pattern:

1. Rid the refrigerator of all foods that are either spoiled or not likely to be eaten. Then temporarily remove the foods to be saved and place them on the counter out of the way so that the refrigerator is virtually empty.

Mix up a baking soda solution of four tbsp. baking soda and one quart of water and sponge it on all areas inside and outside refrigerator and freezer. The baking soda will leave everything clean and odor free.

For stubborn stains such as dried, sticky food spills or rust, apply a paste of three parts baking soda and one part water, or sprinkle dry baking soda onto a damp sponge and rub it in.

Baking soda crystals are strong enough to remove soil, but too soft to scratch or harm refrigerators or freezers. Rinse and buff dry.

2. Next, replace the box of baking soda tucked away in the back of the refrigerator with a fresh box. Chances are it's been there for longer than you think, and is probably not absorbing and neutralizing odors as effectively as it should be.

When you place the new box on the shelf, use the convenient new calendar on the back of the box; mark the date you put it in the refrigerator and its replacement date three months later. (Generally, baking soda is most effective when it is changed every three months.)

Do the same with the baking soda box in the freezer - then say goodbye to stale or funny tasting ice cream or ice cubes. Baking soda chemically neutralizes acidic and basic odors, leaving refrigerators and freezers odor-free.

3. After the new baking soda boxes are in place in the refrigerator and freezer, pour the old boxes down the drain and/or disposal, then follow with hot water. Baking soda keeps drains and disposals sweet and clean. Don't forget bathroom and basement drains too!

So, after a summer break, get reacquainted with the kitchen with a solution of Arm & Hammer Baking Soda! For more cleaning ideas for around the home, send a long, self-address, stamped envelope to: Great Ideas, Church & Dwight Co., P.O. Box 7648, Princeton, NJ 08543-7648.

Insulating crawl space can lead to big savings

When most people think of home insulation, they conjure up images of attics with layers of fiber glass blankets. But other areas of the house also need attention.

Consider insulating the crawl space as an energy-saving project. It's also a good place to start before tackling a larger project like an attic.

According to the CertainTeed Home Institute, the method of insulating is determined by the type of crawl space in the home.

If the crawl space contains heating equipment, or if it contains heating ducts or water pipes and is well-enclosed, insulating the walls is recommended.

This helps create a relatively warm area under the living quarters, protecting equipment and pipes from freezing.

Besides insulation, all that's needed is polyethylene sheeting, a serrated knife and a straight edge for cutting, and several small pieces of lumber (one-by-two-foot boards and 2-by-four-foot).

First lay a ground cover of polyethylene sheeting. Place a few rocks on the material to hold it in place. Try not to walk on it too much as you work. Lap adjoining strips at least two inches and tape the edges to foundation walls.

Next cut several one-by-two boards to fit between the floor joists. Then cut sections of kraft-faced fiberglass insulation in strips long enough to cover the wall from the subfloor to the ground, plus two feet of overlap on the ground. Fasten the insulation to the subfloor with a one-by-two.

Cover the entire wall, laying each blanket firmly next to the one before it. A snug fit is important for effective insulation. The kraft-facing should be toward the open area, not toward the wall.

When the insulation is in place, set a two-by-four on the bend of the insulation that trails across the ground to hold it in place.

For the walls that run parallel to the joists, cut the blankets just long enough to reach from the subfloor to the ground. For these fittings, there is no need to allow for the additional two feet of insulation.

To complete the job, lay fiberglass insulation kraft-face up across the entire ground, along the bases of the walls that parallel the joists.

If the crawl space is open to the weather, or if there is no reason to heat the crawl space, the floor under the living quarters should be insulated.

This helps keep the floor above warm in the winter and cool in the summer, and makes the living area more comfortable.

Besides insulation, all that's needed is polyurethane sheeting, a serrated knife, and a straight-edge for cutting, wire and hammer and nails or a heavy-duty stapler and chicken wire.

First, lay down a layer of polyethylene sheeting in the same way as described for heated crawl spaces. This not only restricts excess moisture, but helps keep out insects and other pests.

To insulate floors, a R-19 kraft-faced insulation is recommended.

First, push the bats, with kraft-facing up, tightly against the subflooring from below.

Hold the insulation in place by lacing wire back and forth among the nails in the bottom of the joists.

For a copy of the instructional brochure "How to Insulate," write to the CertainTeed Home Institute, P.O. Box 860, Valley Forge, Pa., 19482.

Expert advice on home furniture fix-ups

One of the fastest ways to brighten up a room is to make a change in the furnishings. But change doesn't necessarily mean you have to buy a room full of new furniture.

Instead, Homer Gormby, America's best-known authority on wood care and refinishing, recommends "refreshing" the furniture you already have by repairing minor, but unsightly, blemishes.

Whether the problem is a scratch, a cigarette burn or an overall dull, shineless finish, Gormby says a little do-it-yourself attention can bring the piece back to life.

For instance, Formby offers this quick-fix tip for repairing scratches on wood furniture: Melt a brown-tone crayon into the scratch, let cool for one hour, then scrape away the excess with a credit card.

To repair cigarette burns, Formby recommends first gently scraping away the blackened finish. (Be careful not to gorge the wood.)

Then, fill the hollow with a 50/50 mixture of clear nail polish and polish remover. You may need to apply several coats to fill the hollow.

Formby says one of the most common problems with wood furniture is that it becomes dull and tired-looking over time, as well as picking up white rings and other blemishes.

Research shows that 88 percent of American homes have at least one piece of dull wood furniture, and the average home has eight pieces of worn wood furniture.

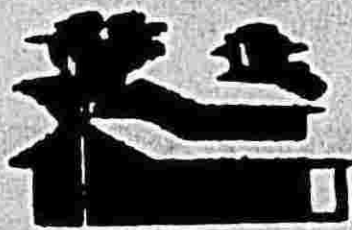

"Everywhere I went, people would ask me if there wasn't some way to revive dull, tired wood without refinishing it," said Formby.

At the time, refinishing was the only answer, so I started looking for an easier solution."

After several years of research, Formby has developed a one-of-a-kind system for restoring dull, tired furniture without refinishing; in fact, the system restores an average-size piece of furniture in less than one hour. Formby calls high unique new process Furniture Face Lift.

The Furniture Face Lift kit contains three components: A cleansing liquid which deep cleans dirt and wax buildup, a buffing cream that removes minor blemishes such as water rings, and a uniquely formulated finish that restores a permanent new shine.

Get ready for winter: Fall is the time for home improvement

The way we live now, and the emphasis that we place on comfort, warmth and practicality in our homes, has more to do with how we design, decorate and improve our living spaces than ever before.

Today's homes reflect a casual elegance which demonstrates a desire on our part to really live in - and enjoy - the spaces we call home.

Our homes are no longer showplaces, but retreats from the hectic pace of everyday living. Improving these spaces has become a way of appreciating the home as a place of comfort and enjoyment.

"Fixing up" our living spaces has quickly become the great American pastime, with most people considering it to be an enjoyable hobby or, at the very least, the protection and enhancement of a good investment.

Home improvement encompasses a wide range of indoor as well as outdoor projects. Painting, installing new siding, replacing rain gutters, repairing or installing a roof, building new additions, porches, patios or decks and landscaping the yard, are just a few ways to beautify and safeguard the home.

In addition, since the fall season has always been a time of new beginnings and new undertakings, many people feel compelled, at this time of the year, to reorganize closets, rake up leaves, and insulate homes for the cold months ahead.

Energy-efficient windows, carpeting, new doors and insulation are effective ways to cut heating bills, and can add to the aesthetic appeal of the home.

Decorating with paint, wallpaper and fabrics is a sure way to add warmth and individuality to a home, and hone a sense of style that is unique to you. Developing a personal style is easier than ever, because interior designs are more eclectic than in past years.

Art deco can be seen mixed with Country French or Italian styling, while American Country sits comfortably next to English Country, and European designs complement the new southwestern Santa Fe look.

Even if your home doesn't require major repairs, a little face-lift can never hurt. A good way to get started on any number of projects is first to make a checklist of things that need to be done, in order of importance.

Begin with major projects - those that will require more research, shopping around and money!

Many homeowners don't realize just how important it is to research the people who will be working for you.

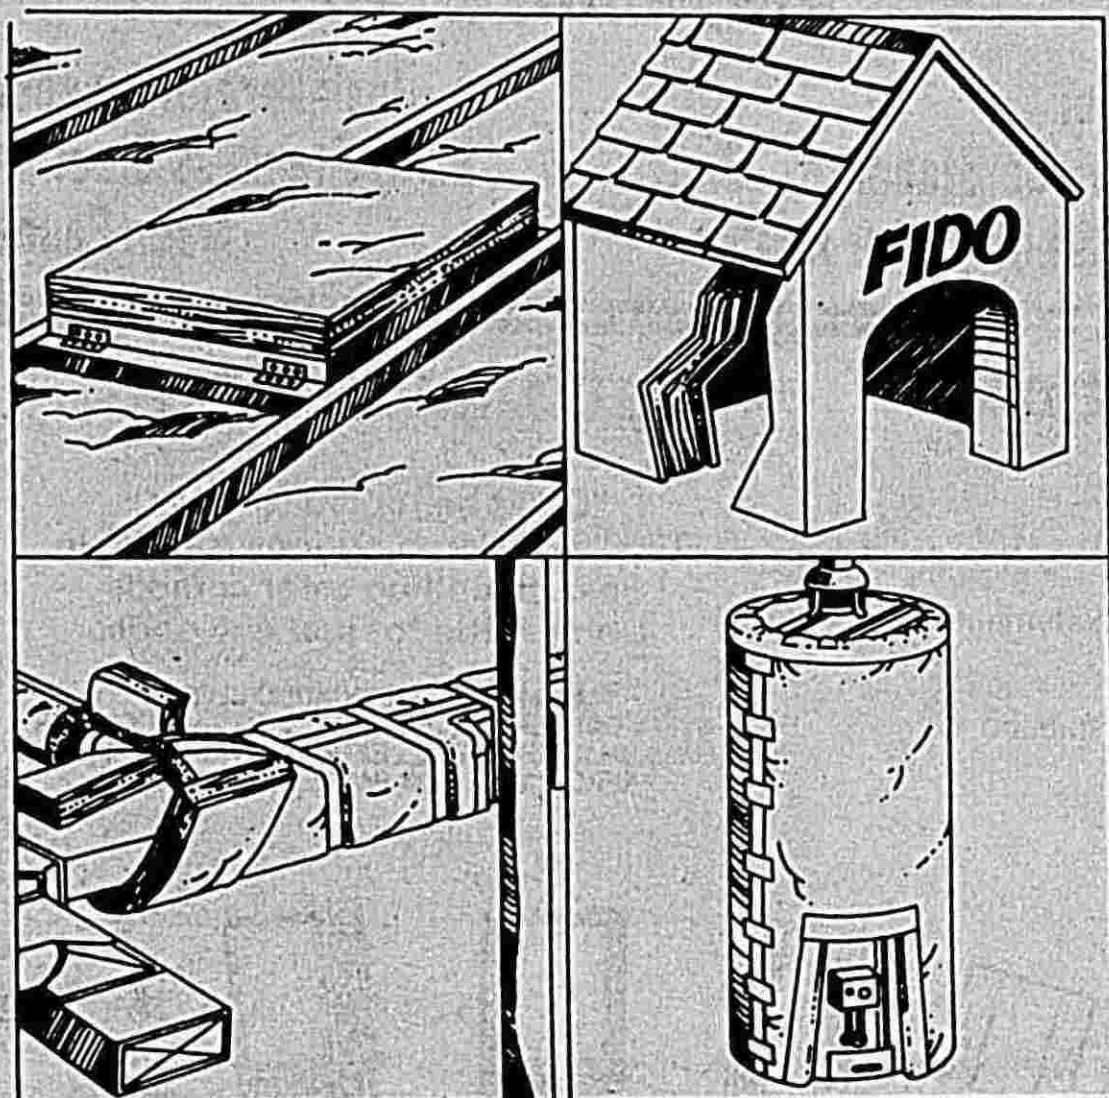

Making sure that deadlines, costs, materials and procedures are spelled out in a contract before the work starts.

One of the most important things to remember when improving or renovating your home is that everything takes time.

Do not expect to complete projects overnight, sometimes even in a few months time. Many professional designers suggest developing a five-year plan where a certain number of projects are completed every year, while you build towards a certain look or style.

It's a practical way to improve your home - giving you the time you need to explore a number of home improvement ideas.

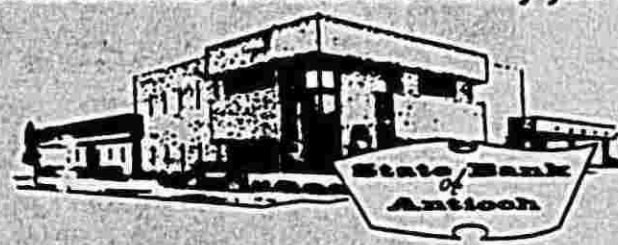

Insulation uses

Extra pieces of insulation left over from an insulating project can be used to wrap water heater, insulating attic trap doors, wrapping indoor water pipes and ducts, or insulating a doghouse.

Safe installation

The consumer safety service of Vermont Castings, the largest wood stove manufacturer in the country, provides thorough information to wood stove purchasers to ensure safe, efficient stove installation and use.

Proper installation key to safety of wood stoves

The warmth of a cozy fire during the cool fall and winter months adds ambiance to any setting. Unfortunately, each season stories abound about needless house fires caused by the improper installation or use of a wood stove.

Most of the time, these fires could have been prevented if the owner had used simple and effective safety precautions during the installation and operation of the unit. Used properly, wood stoves are a safe and economic source of heat.

For those about to purchase a new wood stove, care should be taken to follow the manufacturer's directions for proper installation. A wood stove should have plenty of clearance from its surrounding walls, floor and furniture. In tight spaces, the surroundings must be protected from excessive heat by using optional heat shields.

A stove's installation guide will list what distances are needed between the stove and its surrounding walls. When measuring distances, always measure directly from the stove and not from any optional heat shields.

The hearth on which the stove is placed is also important. Brick, slate and other masonry materials are good spark protectors, but they are not good insulators.

When installing a new stove, check requirements for additional heat shielding.

The area near the chimney connector is also very important. If a stovepipe chimney connector must pass through a combustible wall or ceiling, then installation must be in accordance with guidelines established by the National Fire Safety Assn.

For proper installation, seek the advice of a local wood stove dealer.

If a new home is purchased with an existing wood stove, Robert Ferguson, manager of combustion design and technology for Vermont Castings wood stove manufacturers, recommends that someone qualified in wood stove installation inspect the unit before it is used to make sure it is correctly installed and in good condition. Seals and gaskets should be checked for excessive wear.

An "airtight" or "air-controlled" wood stove, the most commonly used today, is designed to regulate the air so that the fire may be controlled in a safe and efficient manner.

The air flow, or draft as it is usually called, is controlled by a shuttered air inlet and moveable damper. By properly adjusting these, a safe fire can be maintained easily.

Slow, smoky fires and roaring blazes should be avoided. Slow fires are especially dangerous because they cause the buildup of creosote, liquid residue from wood-burning on the chimney walls that can lead to a chimney fire.

Care should be taken in building a fire. The proper method for building a safe fire is to start with a base of one and a half inches of sand or ashes if the stove is not equipped with a grate.

Layers of combustibles should then be placed on top of the base, starting with newspaper and followed by kindling wood and logs.

The specified log size for most stoves is 18 inches, but that will vary if the stove is extremely large or very small.

Before starting the fire, check the surrounding area to be certain that no combustible materials such as cloth or paper are near the stove. Flammables, such as gasoline, kerosene and starter fluid, should never be used to start the fire.

Becoming familiar with a stove's operation, and checking to see that the proper safety precautions have been taken, will help ensure that many happy moments of pleasure and warmth are spent with a cozy fire.

For more information on wood stove safety or installation, contact Vermont Castings' toll-free consumer information line, (800) 227-8683.

New vinyl siding offers darker, earthtone colors

For years, trend-conscious homeowners requested it, but the siding industry was ill-prepared to respond.

While some vinyl siding manufacturers dabbled in darker colors, none had discovered the technology that would enable them to guarantee the performance of such colors.

But all that changed this year with the introduction of CertainTeed's Futura 2000. Through its proprietary "Moleculink" technology, CertainTeed has developed a process for producing high-performance, darker color tones in a solid vinyl siding. The product has been tested extensively in extreme climatic conditions on weathering racks and homes in Florida, Michigan, Massachusetts, Pennsylvania and Kansas, and has performed successfully.

Futura 2000 is available in eight contemporary colors - Timber Brown, Woodsmoke Gray, Barn Red, Warm Chestnut, Meadow Tan, Natural Clay, Glacier White and Cornsilk Cream.

With its smooth, low gloss finish, it closely resembles painted clapboard siding, and the panel's square cut butt casts a deeper, natural shadow line.

William Eberle, director of marketing for solid vinyl siding at CertainTeed, said research for the new siding line began more than five years ago.

"Since the introduction of vinyl siding, one of the shortcomings of the industry has been its inability to offer darker colors," he said.

"For years, CertainTeed has been addressing the problem with intensive R&D efforts. Now, through the development of our 'Moleculink' technology, we are able to satisfy the increasing demand for darker colors with total confidence in the product's ability to perform satisfactorily."

Backed by a limited, non-prorated transferrable lifetime warranty (prorated if transferred), Futura 2000 also carries the Good Housekeeping Seal. It is available with a complete line of coordinated accessories for matching and contrasting effects.

For more information on the new Futura 2000 siding line, write to CertainTeed Corporation (VBPD), P.O. Box 860, Valley Forge, PA 19482.

Dealer's cleaning recipe spruces up old furniture

What's the difference between furniture found in the attic or at a flea market and the kind bought at an exclusive auction? Obviously, it's the cost.

But often the differential is really a matter of a little elbow grease and the antique dealer's special furniture clean-up recipe.

According to James Peek, an upstate New York antique dealer, it's easy to make damaged or neglected furniture look like it just came from the antique dealer's showroom.

Peek developed his "recipe" with Old English furniture care products and he uses it in his own business.

Combine a quarter cup of paint thinner with a quarter cup of Old English Lemon Oil, mixing well.

For color, or to cover nicks and scratches, blend in one teaspoon of Old English Scratch Cover.

Blend in additional teaspoons of products as needed, matching the color of the cleaning mixture with that of the wood.

Moisten a fine steel wool pad in the cleaning mixture, making sure the liquid is fully absorbed.

After dusting wood with a dry clean cloth to remove surface dirt, rub saturated steel wool pad in the direction of the grain, not against it.

A little elbow grease is recommended here, as it may be necessary to remove embedded layers of dirt and polish.

Once the cleaner has been fully applied, let dry for 10 minutes in an open space. Repeat procedure if piece is still dirty or appears in need of additional Scratch Cover.

Once dry, use a soft, lint-free cloth to remove excess cleaner and buff wood surface to shine.

For long-lasting shine, Peek recommends allowing the cleaning mixture to dry overnight, applying lemon oil the next morning and polishing thoroughly.

Note: Test on an inconspicuous spot to ensure recipe compatibility with finish. Wear rubber gloves while working.

Leftover insulation has variety of uses

Any homeowners are aware that there are many beneficial uses for leftover pieces of insulation. For instance, an insulating jacket can be made for the water heater by wrapping insulation around the water heater and securing it at the top and bottom with duct tape. Then use a utility knife to cut out openings for the controls and drain faucet.

Insulating the attic trap door is another perfect spot to use leftover insulation. First, measure the size of the door. Next use a utility knife to cut the material to the appropriate measurements. Lastly, glue or tack insulation to the door.

Wrapping indoor water pipes with extra pieces of insulation is also quite useful, as the material actually helps keep the water flowing through the pipes hotter or colder.

Install insulation sleeves for long pipe runs, but use extra pieces of fiber glass at stopcocks, valves and corners.

First wrap the insulation around the pipe. Then secure it with duct tape or wire.

If a pet lives outdoors in the winter, insulating its home is another beneficial way to use extra pieces of fiber glass material. It will help the pet stay warmer and more comfortable.

To insulate the walls of a doghouse, simply measure the length and width of the walls. Next cut pieces of insulation to the appropriate size and either glue or tack to the walls. Lastly, cover the insulation with plywood or gypsum board.

Dist. 76 Meetings

WHERE TO INSULATE?

Insulating is important because it can help keep your home warm in the winter and cool in the summer while helping you save dollars on energy bills. Typically, there are four areas in a home that should be insulated:

- 1. Attic If you have six inches or less of insulation in your attic, your home is under-insulated by today's energy standards. By adding a layer of 6 1/2" thick R-19 fiber glass insulation, your attic will be properly insulated.
- 2. Sidewalls Sidewalls can be responsible for as much as 35 percent of a home's heat loss. If you have hollow partition walls, the best method is to have a professional contractor install CertainTeed Corporation's INSUL SAFE III® Blown-in Fiber Glass Insulation. It is thermally efficient, noncombustible and noncorrosive.
- 3. Underfloor Areas Up to 15 percent of a home's heat can escape through the floor. To prevent this from happening, insulate underfloor and crawl space areas with a layer of 6 1/2" thick R-19 fiber glass insulation.
- 4. Basement Area If your basement is unheated, install 6 1/2" thick R-19 kraft faced fiber glass batts between the floor joists with the facing positioned upward. If you have a heated basement, use masonry wall batts, which are designed for use behind paneling.

Look for the 'R' factor when choosing insulation

It's R-values, not inches, that count when buying insulation for the home.

R-value means resistance to heat. The higher the R-value, the greater the insulating power.

A six and one quarter inch thick blanket of fiber glass insulation from Owens-Corning Fiberglass Corp., for instance, has an R-value of R-19—or the same insulating effectiveness as 19 and a half feet of solid stone, a seven-foot thick brick wall, or 15 inches of solid wood.

The R-values needed for proper insulation depends on such factors as the local climate and the type of heating fuel used.

The U.S. Dept. of Energy has recommended levels of insulation for existing homes which vary across the country.

For example, in a gas-heated home in St. Louis, the recommendation is R-30 for the attic. The same home in Atlanta carried a recommendation of R-22, and in Portland, Maine, the recommendation is R-38.

Of all the areas in the home, the attic will need insulating material with the highest R-value, according to the U.S. Dept. of Energy.

"Installing insulation in the attic is a simple and inexpensive do-it-yourself project," says Thomas Seymour of Owens-Corning.

"Insulating a typical 1,000-square-foot attic with eight-inch R-25 'Attic Blanket,' for example, only costs around $300 to $350," says Seymour. "Best of all, it can provide energy savings year-round with lower utility bills and a more comfortable home."

Installing the insulation is a matter of measuring the area, cutting the material to fit and laying it between the joists for structural framing members.

The only tools needed are a sharp knife, a straight edge, a ruler, a pair of work gloves, a mask and safety glasses.

Most homeowners select fiber glass batt insulation for its consistent R-value and ease of installation. The R-value is usually printed clearly on the package.

For attics with no insulation, the material should be faced with a kraft paper or foil vapor barrier.

Begin the project by laying a piece of temporary flooring securely across the joists. Start laying the insulation at the outer edges of the attic and work toward the center, laying the long runs first and placing the leftover pieces aside for filling up smaller spaces later.

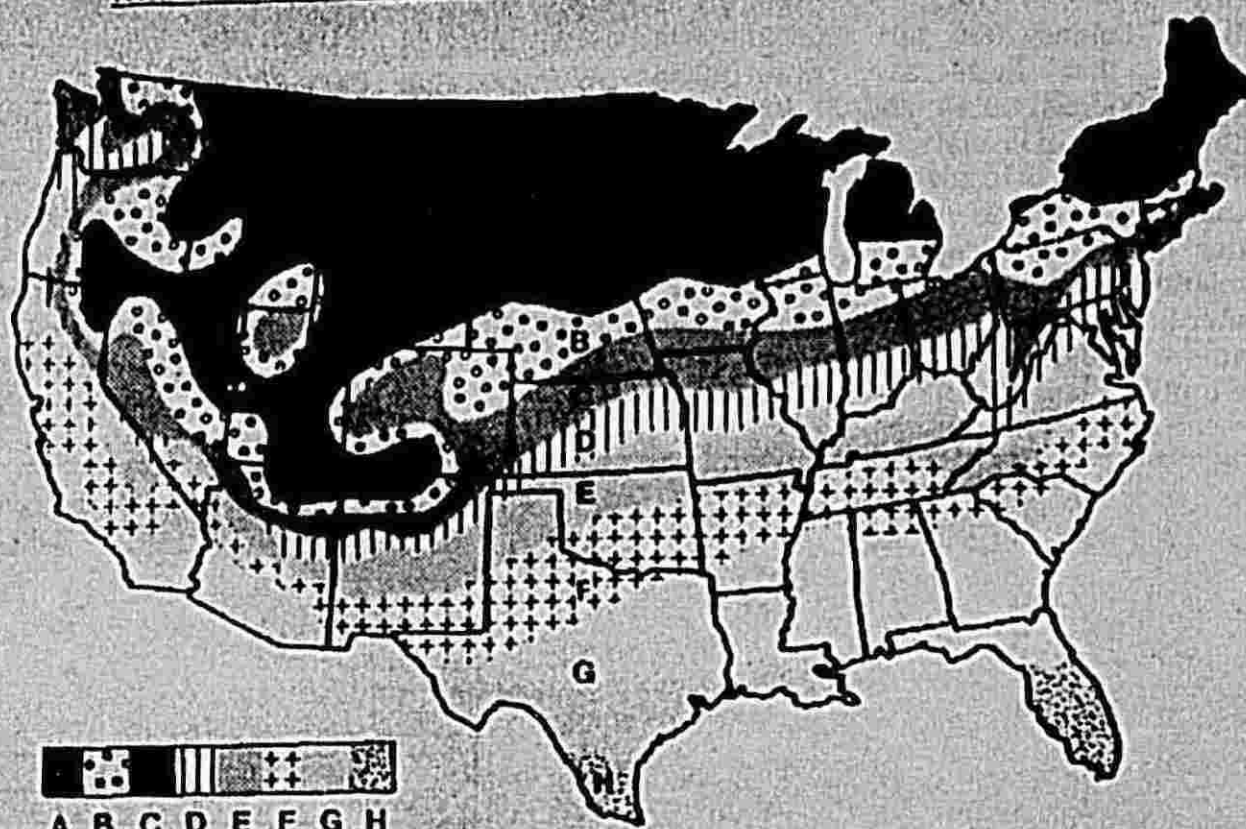

Butt each section tightly up against the adjacent one for a complete barrier.

Be careful not to block eave vents at the edges of the attic, and be sure to keep insulation at least three inches from recessed light fixtures to keep them from overheating.

If adding to insulation, the new layer should be unfaced and placed snugly together at right angles to the joists—directly over the original material.

As a final step, fill the space between a masonry chimney and framing with unfaced material.

Air cleaners reduce indoor contaminants

Homeowners can switch to a better environment this fall by installing an electronic air cleaner to improve indoor air quality.

Experts say the pollution level in homes is 10 to 20 times greater than that experienced outside. Contaminants include seemingly innocuous things such as plant spores, pet dander, cooking smoke and mildew.

More serious contaminants may also be polluting the home. Tobacco smoke, for instance, contains over 3,000 contaminants which can create respiratory irritations and long-term health effects, even among non-smokers.

Formaldehyde, asbestos fibers, radon, carbon monoxide, sulfur dioxide and nitrogen dioxide gases all adversely affect the body.

Evaluate new shingles on quality and protection

Most homeowners today have never had to reroof their dwellings. This means the decision-making process is complicated by "learning curve" time when building a new home or reroofing an existing one, since there are myriad roofing materials from which to choose, in a range of colors, textures and durability.

"One way to cut through the maze of product choices is to evaluate roofing shingles on the quality, value and protection they provide," says Mike Mehrer, residential roofing spokesman for CertainTeed Corp., a manufacturer of building materials and roofing products.

Mehrer advises homeowners to look first for quality. "Pick a fiberglass-based product from a reputable manufacturer. Then look for one which has a long lifetime."

"Fiberglass roofing shingles like our CertainTeed 25 carry a limited warranty for 25 years," says Mehrer. "When you pro-rate the price of the roof over a quarter of a century, you'll quickly see that a roof which carries a 25-year warranty is actually not as expensive as one that carries a 15-year warranty."

Moreover, the longer warranty signifies some immediate benefits you don't have to wait 25 years to appreciate. Shingles which carry a 25-year warranty are heavier and more durable, so they look better from the start than the lighter, thinner products. And, most roofing contractors will tell you they apply better than lightweight shingles.

Of course, the homeowner will also be interested in the aesthetic value of his new roofing, perhaps even more than the duration of the warranty. "There is a range of extremely attractive colors or blends available in moderate price lines," Mehrer reports, "designed to complement virtually any exterior color scheme and architectural style."

"At CertainTeed, we found the earthtones and grays to be extremely popular, and we make several within our product line to give a spectrum of choices," he adds.

Finally, consider protection for the home.

"The fires in southern California late in May this year did minimal damage to the only home in an entire neighborhood with fiberglass-based shingles," Mehrer notes. "The rest of the homes nearby were destroyed."

Clearly, no price can be put on safety for the family, but an Underwriters' Laboratories Class A fire rating, the highest available, does provide peace of mind, especially for those living in remote areas.

"As for the contractor," Mehrer advises, "pick one who's been in your area long enough to build up a clientele who can recommend his work." Reputable contractors will happily give a reference, written estimates for time and material, and deadlines for completing the work satisfactorily.

Keep in mind, too, that good roofing contractors are busy—so don't put off having a home reroofed until it leaks like a sieve and is already causing interior damage.

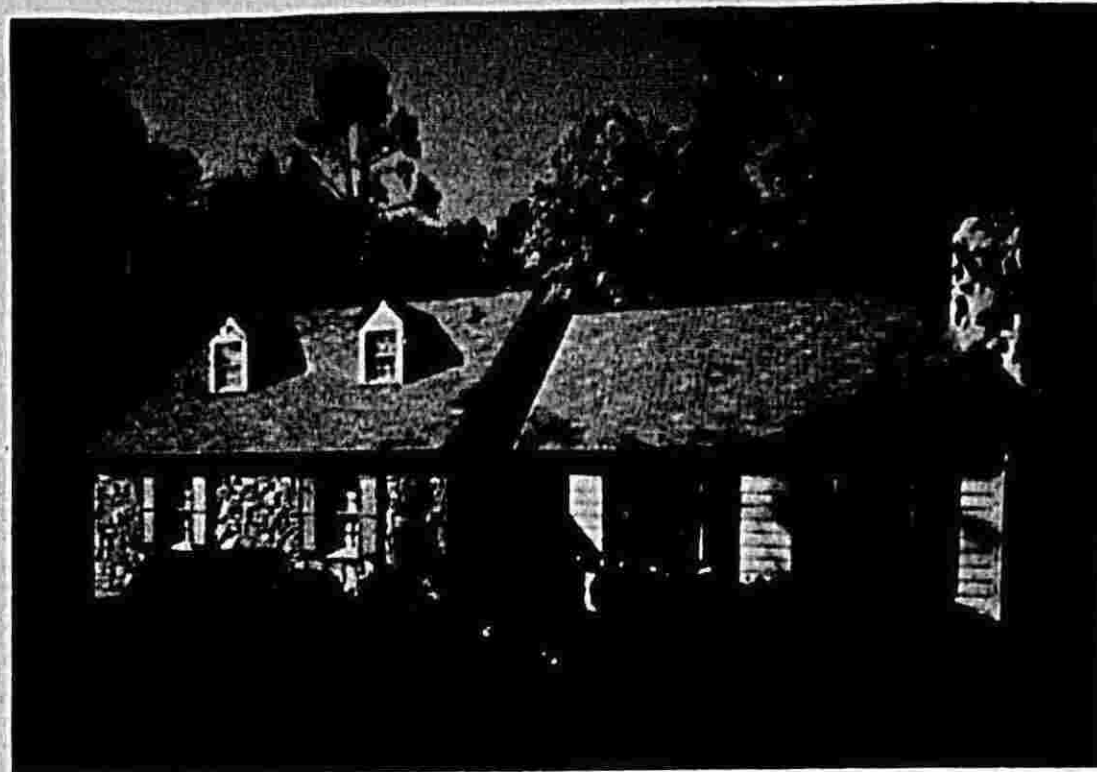

The contractor of choice may not be able to help out on a moment's notice due to his schedule. The homeowner, too, won't want to jam product selection by waiting until the last moment to go ahead with the project.

"Quality, value and protection are important in most major purchase decisions we make," Mehrer notes. "In the world of roofing, these parameters can make all the difference."

Wrap-and-tie provides the perfect cover up

Furniture worn or outdated? Does the thought of buying new furniture financially intimidate you?

The ideal solution to updating the present furniture would be to wrap or cover it, but this is not always possible. Professionally tailored covers can be quite expensive.

According to the Singer Sewing Co., however, old furniture can be turned into functional, attractive furniture by using wrap-and-tie slipcovers.

This method of recovering furniture can solve decorating problems by offering a quick and inexpensive seasonal change.

Wrap and tie slipcovers require minimal sewing, so they are a viable project not only for the creative advanced sewer but also for those who possess only a basic knowledge of simple sewing techniques.

The most crucial step in the entire procedure is measuring the item that is going to be covered; accuracy is essential.

All it takes is a bit of draping, stitching, wrapping, pinning and tucking of the new fabric. Within a few hours' time, that old sofa, chair or ottoman will look plush and stylish.

To complete the fresh new look and pull the whole room together, cover the old overstuffed throw pillows by creating ruffled shams from leftover fabrics or in a coordinating print or solid color.

Or hide that faded, dusty lampshade by sewing a custom lampshade cover using basic stitching and a bit of elastic.

Collectively, these simple do-it-yourself projects can serve as decorating tools to give old classics a new and delightful appearance.

Additional guidance on sewing wrap and tie slipcovers is available from local Singer and sewing supply dealers.

Skylights help chase the midwinter 'blahs'

The amount of natural light a person receives affects mood and even health, scientists report.

Researchers say a shortage of full-spectrum light can leave one feeling fatigued, depressed and irritable. Some say the midwinter "blahs" are at least partly due to spending less time in natural light.

Homeowners who want to lighten up are including skylights and roof windows in their remodeling and home-building plans.

It's better to install one skylight than to curse the darkness," says Bart Mosser of Wasco Products, a skylight manufacturer, putting a new twist on an old saying.

Although window glass blocks out some light waves, it provides a fuller spectrum than almost any light bulb.

Because of a skylight's angle to the sun, Mosser says a skylight provides more sunlight and greater privacy than a sidewall window.

Another benefit: Skylights do not take up wall space that can be used for book cases and cabinets.

If the roof is covered with standard asphalt shingles, sleek skylights with built-in weatherproof thermoplastic curbs can be used. Roofing cement is added around the roof opening and the skylight is nailed down.

"You want to cover that opening as soon as possible," Mosser adds.

Roofs covered with thick materials like Spanish tiles or wood shingles require a skylight designed to be mounted atop a wood curb.

A free booklet, "Everything the Homeowner Needs to Know About Skylighting," is available from Wasco Products, Inc., Dept. M, Sanford, ME 04073.

Wrap, cut and tie

Worn or outdated furniture can be easily and inexpensively rejuvenated by making wrap and tie slipcovers. The Singer Sewing Co. offers guidance on how to wrap and tie through local dealers.

Save cash and fuel with pre-season winterizing

Cold weather isn't a long way off, and money and energy can be saved by making sure the furnace is in top shape for winter before freezing weather sets in.

Trane Dealer Products Groups, a manufacturer of heating and air conditioning products, has these pre-season tips:

1. Caulking leaky windows and door frames is a good way to keep chilly air from seeping into the home. Also caulk around the corners of the basement where the walls meet the foundation, as well as along breaks in the outside of the house, such as around water faucets and porches.

A caulking gun will allow application of a strip of caulk right on the surface to be sealed. Remember to remove any old caulk before applying the new.

2. If weatherstripping is damaged or missing from around outside doors, where precious heat can escape, then it's time to weatherstrip these areas.

Other areas where weatherstripping can prove to be a money-saving measure are interior doors leading to unheated rooms such as utility and storage areas; folding stairways to the attic; electric light fixtures on ceilings; and walls adjacent to unheated areas.

Types of weatherstripping vary by expense and ease of installation, from inexpensive felt, plastic and foam to more permanent types such as strips edged with foam, rolled tubular vinyl and various aluminum and vinyl combinations that are more expensive and more difficult to install, but are more effective in the long run.

3. Storm windows seal out blustery air and are a smart purchase at this time of year. A local dealer can advise on the types of storm windows available, and tell which kind is best suited to your home and climate.

4. Home insulation is a permanent energy-saving measure and most utilities give free advice on the savings you can expect from a well-insulated home.

Insulation can be self-installed, but it's best to consult a professional contractor before starting. There are many considerations in choosing between types of insulation, and several precautions to take for safety and effectiveness. A professional contractor will be able to assist in purchasing decisions.

Insulation is recommended for the attic, floors over unheated areas, exterior walls, and around hot water heaters and pipes.

5. Every month, from the time the furnace is started until spring thaw, the furnace filter should be changed to ensure that the heated air is fresh and clean, and that the furnace is operating smoothly.

6. Contact a local heating equipment dealer to find out specifics about their inspection and tuneup program. If the furnace needs replacing, the dealer can recommend a new high-efficiency model, or might recommend adding a heat pump. A heat pump is an energy-efficient unit that heats and air conditions economically—it moves heat by pulling it from the outdoor air and pumping it from one area to another.

During the winter, the heat pump extracts the heat that's present in cold winter air, and pumps the heat into the home. Yes, there's heat in the air even in the coldest weather.

And when summer comes around again, it functions as a conventional air conditioner, pulling the heat out of the home, releasing it outdoors and circulating cooled air throughout the home.

7. Lower the thermostat to 60 degrees at night. If the house is kept at 68 during the day, turning it down for eight hours during the night can save between 10 and 15 percent on heating fuel.

If the thought of getting up to turn the heat back on in the chill of morning is unsettling, consider an automatic thermostat that, through time control, will switch the heat back up to 68 degrees in the early morning hours.

Once these energy-saving pre-season steps have been taken, here are a few helpful everyday hints to follow for keeping the home toasty warm and fuel costs down:

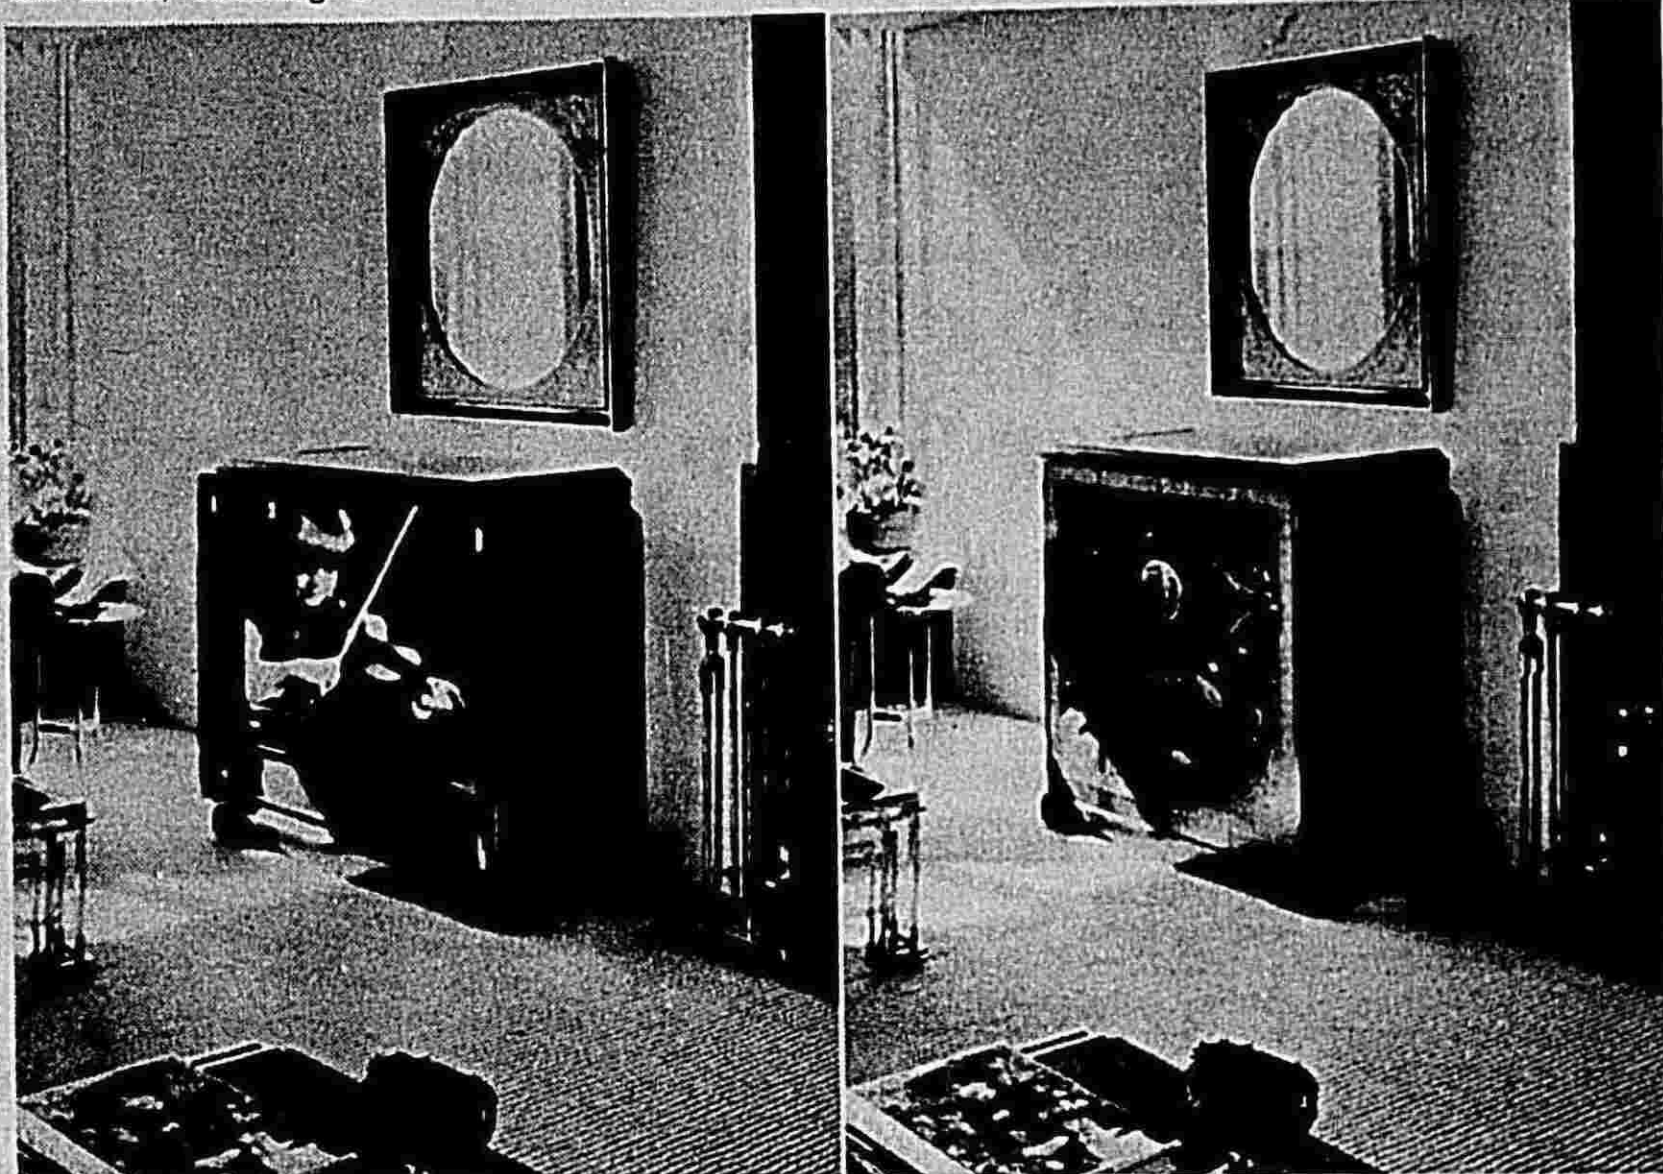

—Close the door and reduce the heat flow to unused rooms. Don't close the registers all the way down, and keep the room at a minimum of 50 degrees to avoid allowing icy air to seep into adjacent rooms and to keep water pipes from freezing.

—Never place furniture drapes in front of vents radiators.

—When not in use, keep the dampers to fireplaces closed.

—Open curtains during the day to let in the warm winter sunshine, and close them at night for extra insulation.

WHO WOULD HAVE GUESSED?

Do your children tell you everything? If they have taken a spill, fallen off a bike, or injured themselves playing football, you may be the last to know. That's why it's important to give your children a Chiropractic Checkup regularly. Many times, untreated childhood accidents turn into spinal distortions that may not show up for months or years. Parents never really know how many little bumps, knocks, and falls their children have had. Why take a chance? Bring your children in for a Chiropractic Checkup. CALL TODAY!

In 'Jake and the Fatman,' Penny sorts out the clues

By Wendy Wallace

"Our show involves a lot of different characters and subplots," says Joe Penny, who stars as suave undercover investigator Jake Styles in the new CBS series "Jake and the Fatman," which premieres Sept. 29. "So it's going to exist on strength of the characters. Any show worth its weight in anything has been successful because of character development."

Joe Penny

In a preview of the series airing Saturday, Sept. 26, we meet Jake's other half, the "Fatman" of the title. Former "Cannon" star William Conrad returns to television as J.L. "Fatman" McCabe, a district attorney with a hard-edged reputation. But McCabe's lighter side comes out when he's around Max, his half-deaf bulldog, and when he's at Dixie's Bar and Grill, the restaurant he frequents after hours.

Styles, meanwhile, is a high-living detective whose taste for expensive clothes and fast cars frequently plays a role in his investigations.

"It's an equal partnership," says Penny of the two characters. "We are two adults wanting to do the job. Although I drive a Porsche, what people will see is a little more than that. I want to get back at the bad guys."

"It was Bill's (Conrad) idea with the dog," he adds. "And it was a great one, because those two are characters together."

Penny discovered acting at age 18, when a friend suggested that he attend an acting class. Small parts on TV led to the role of Nick Ryder, a former Army helicopter pilot turned private eye, on NBC's "Riptide." Since the series was canceled last year, Penny has starred in the TV movie "Blood Vows: The Story of a Mafia Wife" and the miniseries "Roses Are for the Rich."

"Jake and the Fatman" offers a twist on the mystery genre: At the start of each episode the perpetrator is revealed to the audience. McCabe and Styles, though, must sort out the clues.

"Things get very predictable in terms of who did it," Penny says. "Knowing right away who the villain is endears the audience to the characters a little more, in terms of watching them work. It gives the audience an important part of the show — they know something that McCabe and Styles don't know. And it gives the show a little twist."

14 area students attain merit scholar semifinals

The National Merit Scholarship Corp. released the names of 15,000 high school seniors from around the country who were chosen as semi-finalists in the 33rd annual Merit Program.

The academically talented students will have the opportunity to continue in the 1988 competition for about 6,000 Merit Scholarships worth over $23 million.

Over 1 million students in some 19,000 U.S. secondary schools entered the current Merit Program by taking the PSAT/NMSQT as juniors. To be considered for Merit Scholarships, semifinalists must become finalists by meeting high academic standards, being fully endorsed and recommended by their high school, taking the SAT and confirming their qualifying test performance, and submitting information about school and community activities, personal interests and goals.

The 1988 class of Merit Scholars to be announced next spring will join some 102,500 other academic champions who have received Merit Scholarships worth $310 million since the first Merit Program was completed in 1956.

Area semi-finalists are:
Karen J. Spronk, Antioch

Community High School; Rebecca J. Newport, Kristin Schrader and Clement Y. Wang, Buffalo Grove High School; Kristian Klefstad, Karen Liu and Kenneth Roth, Lake Zurich High School.

Thaine Lyman and Sean McPherson, Carmel High School for Boys; Amy Korytowski, Carmel High School for Girls; Ann Fullington, Mundelein High School; Jeffrey Kurtzman, Adlai Stevenson High School; Laura Green, Warren High School; and William Fisher, Wilmet High School.

Dixon announces approval of watershed project

Senator Alan J. Dixon has announced that the United States Senate Agricultural Committee approved an authorization of $54 million for the lower Des Plaines Tributaries watershed project.

"It has finally cleared its last Congressional hurdle," Dixon reported. "This flood control project will be funded by the U.S. Dept. of Agriculture's Soil Conservation Service under existing law."

As proposed, the Lower Des Plaines flood control project will consist of four reservoirs, one multi-purpose reservoirs and recreational facility, 2.5 miles of floodwater diversion, 1.21 miles of previously modified stream channels, and one flood control dike.

The total storage capacity of the five reservoirs will be 3,195 acre feet or more than 1 billion gallons. When completed, this project will protect 1,418 residents and 136 businesses from 100 year floods, saving these people more than $38,000 annually in flood insurance costs. It will also reduce flood damage to another 1,079 homes, and 67 businesses.

It is estimated that more than 6,500 people will benefit directly by this project. More than $10.3 million annually will be saved in flood damage costs. This project will lessen the chances of flooding in roadways and viaducts which have regularly prevented residents from reaching work.

Although, the implementation of this plan will not produce a totally flood free environment, it is a big step toward relieving those areas consistently plagued by rainwater during this August torrential downfall.

Primarily, the lower Des Plaines Tributaries plan will reduce flood runoff from Buffalo-Wheeling Creek, Addison Creek, Crystal Creek, Salt Creek, McDonald Creek, Silver Creek, and Willow-Higgins Creek.

The state, the Metropolitan Sanitary Dist. of Greater Chicago (MSD), the Du Page County Forest Preserve, and 11 other local jurisdictions will contribute 37.6 percent of the total projects cost. The rest will come from federal funds.

"Hopefully, construction will begin later this year and the entire project is expected to take between seven to 10 years to complete.

Peace balloon

Students at Beach School in Round Lake Beach launched an eight-foot balloon decorated as a globe as part of their celebration of the Bicentennial of the Constitution. Emphasis of celebration was on hope for peace.

Orchards

"It's not really an Indian tribe," said Rick. "My dad will tell you it's an Indian tribe that was here 400 years ago."

Rick is the general manager and Nancy the store manager, but, according to Nancy, "We don't really have titles, whatever needs to be done, we do." Nancy, 46, has been working at the orchards for six years after managing the family's cheese and sausage store for 16 years (it has since closed).

She notices shifting buying habits in the year-round retail store—besides the all-popular apple. "It used to be that people bought gifts," Nancy said. "Now what I'm hearing customers say is they want to come buy natural foods...anything you'd have in a general store."

Rick did not only grow up scrounging for cider apples with the neighborhood kids, he became formally educated in the apple orchard business. He received an apple orchard management degree from the University of Massachusetts. He has since been responsible for the yearlong maintenance of the orchard.

Education or not, he does not knock his apple scrounging days—a trade at which he never became proficient. Kids back then made 20 cents a bushel for cider apples. "These kids would earn $300 to $400 season after season just scrounging for apples," he said.

Like Rick and Nancy, apple picking was a first job for dozens of neighborhood kids. In fact, one nearby family had eight children who started their working lives at Wauconda Apple Orchards.

The apple business has been sweet for the Breeden family. But they say starting such a business isn't feasible anymore (at least in this area). Land that cost $300 acre forty years ago now sells for $2,300 an acre.

"It's a fun type of business, but it's not real profitable," said Nancy.

Echo

order to maintain its product continuity criteria.

Echo is currently housed in a 100,000-square-foot facility. The production expansion will add an additional 60,000 square feet. The project will be completed in late spring, 1988 and will add approximately 200 jobs to the northern Illinois community.

Flourishing in the U.S. for 15 years, Echo began as a chain saw marketer and now offers complete lines of chain saws, brushcutters, hedge clippers, generators, water pumps and power blowers, among other products and accessories.

There has been an evolution of events leading to this major production expansion. In 1972, Echo began marketing Japanese-imported whole goods completely packaged by Kioritz. In 1979, Echo imported component parts to begin the process of product assembly. At that time, it also began its own packaging production. Over the years, it has added more and more U.S.-sourced components. Now the fourth step is the manufacturing of whole products in the U.S. The U.S. production base will initially serve the North American market, and ultimately serve a global market.

The transition had originally been planned for the upcoming years, but due to the dramatic appreciation of the yen, Echo opted to begin ground breaking and construction this year.

Since economists predict the shift in the yen is likely to be permanent, Echo is stepping to the forefront of manufacturing to maintain its competitive position and product flow for its distributors, dealers and consumers in North America while improving its worldwide position.

Atty. general files suit against McManus

Attorney General Neil F. Hartigan filed suit in Lake County Circuit Court last week in an effort to recover a half million dollars allegedly taken in a phony real estate operation by Thomas McManus.

McManus, president of Great America Homes of Illinois, Inc. of Vernon Hills, is accused of a series of deceptive practices, including advertising for sale lots which he did not own.

"McManus and his associates have duped dozens of people in the Lake County area," Hartigan said. "They claimed to own the lots, made unrealistic and misleading representations of the homes they claimed they would build and handled applications for mortgage loans."

"Our law suit says these were a pack of lies."

A parallel investigation involving criminal charges is being conducted by Lake County State's Attorney Fred Foreman. McManus is currently in the Lake County Jail. He has been investigated or charged in the past with fraud in Wisconsin, Florida, South Dakota, Iowa, Arizona and with writing bad checks in DuPage County.

Hartigan's suit charges that McManus and his company did not actually own the lots nor did they have title, that they never intended to build, and that deposits, presumably put in escrow, were in reality spent on personal and business uses.

Also charged are McManus' wife, Linda, and Bruce Sova, who are listed as managing agents for the company. A second operation, Ameriwest Mortgage Corp., which handled financing for the operation, is also named in the suit.

At least 70 persons made application or contracted for the purchase of homes. Among the 35 who filed complaints with the Attorney General's office, there were down payments ranging from $5,000 to $12,000, suggesting that the fraud may exceed $500,000.

Hartigan's suit seeks a permanent injunction prohibiting the company from further business, revocation of its corporate charter and the defendant's mortgage brokerage license.

The suit also seeks the appointment of a receiver, restitution, a full accounting of assets and business records, and $500,000 in civil penalties for each of two counts of deceptive practices.

Program to clarify tax

The University of Illinois Cooperative Extension Service is providing a free program on the "The New Tax Law and You" from 7 to 9 p.m. on Thursday, Oct. 1, at the Lake County Extension Auditorium in Grayslake.

An Internal Revenue Service representative will address topics including how changes in Tax Act of 1986. To pre-register for the program, or for more information, call the Lake County Extension office at (312)223-8627.

The smoking gun

The promise of Heartland

All parties to the so-called "Heartland Agreement" are smiling, perhaps a bit wanly, which concludes a 15-year controversy over the use of 2,100 acres in central Lake County. The agreement covers rezoning of two parcels for housing and light industry while reserving a third parcel for basically environmental and open space purposes. In general, everyone involved in the tenuous Heartland struggle feels good about the outcome and is glad that it's over. The relief is underscored by the position of Dist. 5 County Board Rep. F.T. "Mike" Graham, the open space hardliner, who described the agreement as "better than we had reason to believe it would ever be."

When first presented to the public by land promoters, Heartland was described as a multi-faceted community that would grow to 40,000 persons in 20 years. Development of the project on land lying east and south of Grayslake kicked off a bitter and complicated battle, the classic collision between landowners attempting to dictate their own destiny and local forces interested in preserving the open and rural character of the area.

Even after 15 years, the thought of high rise structures, shopping centers and acres upon acres of homes replacing the rolling fields of corn and soybeans is unnerving. Even more shocking is the realization that had not the battle for control of the mid-county landscape ensued, Heartland would now be nearly complete, the county's third largest community today.

The agreement, adopted unanimously by the County Board, prohibits landfills and incinerators or mobile home parks and should put to rest fears of residents of Grayslake, Libertyville and Mundelein, of expansion of the existing landfill to a regional solid waste disposal center.

In our opinion, the best part of the agreement is a provision for purchase of 675 acres known as the Rte. 45 Triangle by a preservation group organized as Prairie Holdings Co. for limited development with an emphasis on open space. We are confident that Prairie Holdings will fulfill its promise, mainly because its chairman is Gaylord Donnelley, a long-time resident of the area and highly regarded environmentalist. Donnelley considers the triangle of strategic importance and a fragile natural resource.

If there is anything to be learned from the Heartland controversy, it is that the agreement is a compromise. Settlement was reached because everyone involved gave up something, government and private citizens alike. That is the American way.

Our living Constitution

Americans who joined with President Reagan Wednesday morning, Sept. 16, in the in-unison recitation of the Pledge of Allegiance experienced a feeling, we're certain, of togetherness or oneness that isn't always felt in this vast nation of ours. The in-unison recitation should be remembered as a highlight of the observance of the Bicentennial of the Constitution. Sad but true, in far too many cases it was the only observance of the adoption of the marvelous document.

The experience of community or feeling—and knowing—that you are indeed part of something larger than the landscape at hand and the warmth prompted by the awareness of your heritage is experienced only a few times in a lifetime. We shall never forget the inner glow felt at an ice cream social years ago during a village anniversary. The in-unison recitation recalled the same feeling and renewed pride in America.

We were struck by a common thread of viewpoint voiced the past week by those who expressed themselves on the U.S. Constitution. "It's far from perfect, but it is the basis of the best system of government ever offered people on earth." The U.S. Constitution is a living document. It lives because each and every one of us breathes new life into it every day. The high ideals of our Founding Fathers 200 years ago still glow with vitality and inspiration.

Beneficial relocation

A ground-breaking in Lake Zurich the other day provided close-hand evidence that a global economic issue affecting the entire U.S. trade system is being addressed in what can only be viewed as positive action by the Japanese.

Echo Inc. is being expanded because of a decision by its parent in Tokyo to relocate a major percentage of its production to the U.S. This decision wasn't motivated by any concern over American unemployment or an effort to reduce transportation costs. Echo's Japanese owners are responding to the Japanese yen's steady appreciation. With the softer dollar American-made products are more competitive. The yen-to-dollar relationship has challenged many Japanese manufacturers. The shift of manufacturing to the U.S. bodes well for our economy.

The relocation trend is expected to continue as the 22-month climb of the yen continues. According to the Illinois Dept. of Commerce and Community Affairs, there are approximately 450 Japanese service, manufacturing and distribution companies located in Illinois alone. Obviously, decisions made in Tokyo impact on our community as well as the nation as a whole.

Fields on inspector void spot

Two Lake County Board powerhouses have clashed over the job of liquor control inspector. County Chairman Jim Fields has taken the position that the inspector isn't necessary. Dist. 4 Rep. Norman Geary, senior County Board member and fiscal watchdog, says the inspector provides for "checks and balances" that are necessary. Fields says there isn't any money available to pay an inspector. Geary claims that funds are available and that the former inspector "more than paid his own way."

Fields is standing on the technicality that the contract for services awarded in June, 1986, to Derrick Warner as an independent contractor for liquor commissioner ran out and that no steps were taken to renew. Geary scores a telling point in the argument, though, when he asks how Fields can contend that an inspector isn't needed when, in fact, Warner brought in nearly $20,000 in additional income through inspection and enforcement efforts? Geary also is contending that language in the contract would have supported Fields in maintaining Warner's services had the chairman so wanted.

With Fields up for reelection next year and Geary making no secret that he would like to see his Dist. 4 colleague retire from public life, the liquor inspector provides a nifty campaign issue. For his failure to embrace the idea of an independent inspector, Fields for the moment, at least, has painted himself into a corner. If the chairman/liquor commissioner, however, chooses to summon a new debate on the need for the services of a new independent liquor inspector, then he will face the wrath of tavern owners in unincorporated areas throughout the county and especially in his home Dist. 4 where the political force of the holders of liquor licenses is considerable.

Ironically, absence of the inspector hired to take politics out of enforcement of liquor control ordinances has set the stage for the 1988 County Board campaign with the result that there is more political action than ever.

Letters To The Editor

Park vs. private profit

Editor:

Should Mundelein Park Dist. property be used for private use and profit? As insane as that may sound, that is exactly the issue which soon will be proposed to the Park Dist. Board by the Kangas Construction Co. of Gurnee.

At issue is a 77-unit apartment complex which has been proposed to the Mundelein Planning Commission, and includes access across Park Dist. property onto Noel Dr. (the area formally known as Lions Field).

This should not be considered an isolated issue by Mundelein residents, but a danger signal, a sign of what could come to pass if not opposed. If a precedent is set by the Park Dist. Board (with the encouragement of the Mayor), future developers could request the same access across park property and have legal precedent to do so. One such example is the farm land located east of Brice and south of Carmel High School. This property is bordered by Hanrahan Park to the south. The only access to this land is the dead end on Wilcox. Should a developer wish to improve this property, would the Park Dist. Board consider access through Hanrahan Park? The same is true for unimproved land north of Community Park in Loch Lomond, as well as those parks located in Tullamore and Cambridge.

Growth can and could be a positive force in Mundelein. When a community considers giving up public land for personal profit, this kind of growth adds nothing to the community. It does destroy existing parks whose sole function is the enjoyment and benefit of its citizens.

Need traffic lights

Editor:

Those of us who travel on Old McHenry Rd. often encounter long delays at the intersection of Old McHenry and Midlothian Rds. and Old McHenry Rd. and Rte. 22. It seems obvious that these delays could be significantly alleviated if the four-way stop signs at these intersections were replaced by regular traffic lights. The timing of the lights could be adjusted to accommodate roads with the heaviest use. The increased population growth in this area clearly demands that traffic controls be modified.

Take a walk! You'll be in for some fun

by BILLSCHROEDER

Walking is one of life's simple and healthful pleasures that all of us in this suburban environment should do more of. Walk? The very thought of pressing shoe leather against pavement is revolting in our automobile-dominated lifestyle. I've decided to exclude myself from the non-walkers after finding out how much fun and good feeling a brisk walk offers.

Instead of hitching a ride to the service station to pick up my car after an oil change and grease, I decided to hoof it—all five blocks. The experience, only about 10 minutes, convinced me that I've been missing a lot by being slavishly devoted to car transportation instead of foot power.

First, I took note of a beautiful September afternoon with sunshine and a balmy 70's temperature. I was able to appreciate at close hand how successful a householder I had observed from the driver's seat was at seeding a new lawn. At second glance I noticed the first fall of the oak leaves. Two little girls, chattering and giggling, skipped out of my way, enjoying life as only children can. Well-tended yards appeared again and again along my way. There still are a lot of people who really care about the looks of their home.

I waved to a passerby on the other side of the street. Recognizing me, he called out, "How's the family?" Now there's a greeting to make a warm September afternoon even more pleasant. When you're behind the wheel, the only greetings you get from other drivers are gestures. I ducked under some low-hanging cottonwood branches. More falling leaves and a quick realization that fall is upon us.

I tried to maintain a good pace, thinking about advice from regular walkers that smart stepping is beneficial. Yes, I noticed some creaky muscles being put to use.

Almost before I realized it, I arrived at the service station. As a motorist again—heading home—I was struck with the good feeling that the walk provided.

The walk was worthwhile. When did I get sour on foot power? Was it infantry basic or a hectic lifestyle that goes with the job? Now that I've rediscovered the enjoyment of walking, I'm trying to convince myself that that's the way to go. Well, maybe sometimes.

MODEL JAIL—Sheriff Robert "Mickey" Babcox fairly bubbles in describing the features of the new Lake County Jail now under construction. "It's like no jail you can imagine. Most people will be surprised, but we're really in the forefront of modern penal institutions," the sheriff remarked.

What's making the high rise prison different, according to the sheriff, are facilities and features necessary to provide for inmates under government mandate. As Babcox put it bluntly, "The new jail is going to prevent a lot of lawsuits in the future." The new jail will provide for privacy, safety and dignity. The new jail will implement the many new resources available to prisoners, much of them offered by volunteers, the sheriff explains. He described the new jail as resembling a campus dormitory.

Lest you think that society is getting overly soft, Babcox hastens to point out that most of the jail occupants are only in custody temporarily. For the short stay, it isn't Lake County's intention to treat them like hardened criminals, the sheriff emphasized. The new jail sounds like an interesting place to see—as a visitor, not as one of the sheriff's "guests."

TWO LIFETIMES—One papal audience is an opportunity few persons experience in a lifetime. Chester "Cozy" Kuzuchowski of Shorewood Subdivision, Round Lake, considers himself truly blessed to be able to experience two papal audiences. BLUE MONDAY—Local government came to a virtual standstill Monday night when the Chicago Bears played the New York Giants in Soldier's Field. Meetings were started early and agendas were cut short. We weren't aware of any official meeting cancellations, but we heard of several city meetings being postponed so die-hard fans could watch the big game on tv.

ONE MAN'S FAMILY—Our household convinced that the family shepherd, Bar can predict the weather or at least forecast rain. Every time rain is on the way, outdo loving Barin demands to be let in the house even if it takes forcing her way through sliding glass door. Sheriff's job is more than cops and robbers

As I approach almost 30 years of public service, I take time once in a while to reflect on the many changes I have seen in the way the public perceives its elected officials. One thing is for sure, though: The public rarely has an opportunity to see the day-to-day workings of a public office and its personnel. When I was elected to my first term as Lake County Sheriff, the office had many problems which needed immediate solutions.

Guest Columnist

By Robert H. Babcox

The fate of the Lake County Work Release Program was unclear after being ousted from Camp Logan in Zion. There were numerous problems with the unsafe and overcrowded conditions at the Lake County Jail. Organization and leadership were lacking in the office, and morale was poor.

In response to these problems, I reorganized the office with clear chains of command in segmented areas of responsibility, hiring only qualified administrators and promoting capable supervisors. Police training and educational programs were adopted and attended by unprecedented numbers of veteran deputies and new recruits. Politics has been taken out of the work environment. Promotions are earned through merit and professionally validated examinations. New and updated rules and regulations guide Sheriff's Dept. employees. Employees know where they stand and work in a professional law-enforcement environment. Consequently, morale is high and the employees maintain the level of efficiency in their work which is necessary to provide the positive results being accomplished within the department.

However, new rules, more regulations, frequent meetings, orders of the day and operating procedures are only the beginning of the effort to make the Lake County Sheriff's Office the most efficient, effective and respected in the state, if not the country. I've always said that what the world needs are fewer rules and more good examples.

The future of law enforcement is not just in enforcement of the laws, but in prevention of crime. Citizens across the country are in agreement that tax dollars used for crime prevention are better spent for that purpose than tax dollars spent only for criminal investigation and law enforcement.

The experiences I gain from being Sheriff of such a diversified county cannot be measured by any normal standard because so much of what I come into contact with as Sheriff defies normal expectations. I recall one of the first "busts" we made after being elected Sheriff in 1982.

The place was a "nudie bar" in the northern part of the county. Our undercover agents had everything perfectly coordinated so that our deputies would arrive at the time the performance began and we would have the needed evidence. Everything went like clockwork. The dancers in the place had removed just enough of their costumes to become illegal and our deputies arrived and began making the arrests.

As I arrived, one of my deputies was escorting a comely young performer out of the door who had not had the time to replace all of the garments she had discarded on the stage a few moments before. As she passed me on the way to the paddy wagon, she stopped, not fearing of catching a cold on that chilly evening, and standing on the curb in her postage-stamp-size underwear, defiantly shook her fist at me and proclaimed, "Mickey, I'll never vote for you again!" I responded, "I'm sorry for this inconvenience, but some people object to the fan dancer and others to the fan." With that, she was placed into warmer environs and driven off to the county jail.

Another incident I'll never forget is the time we had a barricaded, armed subject trapped inside of a home late at night in a rural part of the county. We knew this individual was dangerous; he was threatening to kill himself and anyone who came near him. I responded by authorizing our SWAT team, with army fatigues and automatic rifles, to surround the home used by the subject and to use whatever force would be necessary to apprehend him. So a dozen or so of our paramilitary types, machine guns and all, surrounded the subject's refuge. At this location, there was a small cottage next door to the house holding the subject. Our deputies needed to gain a safe vantage point where they could look into a window on the side of the subject's refuge. The small cottage was that place.

Two of our deputies silently proceeded to enter onto the front porch of the cottage. They quietly knocked on the front door. There was no response, so they assumed no one was home. After taking their positions on the porch, the porch light suddenly went on. For safety's sake, one of the deputies used his rifle butt to smash the light out so the subject next door would be less likely to see our people trying to observe him.

Some time later that night, the SWAT team stormed the house and apprehended the subject. I also had occasion then to speak with the little old lady who was the owner and sole occupant of that cottage. She told me that she had just moved into the cottage that very day after having spent many years living in Chicago. She told me she moved from Chicago to get away from crime. I remember thinking how that poor woman was in the wrong place at the wrong time.

There are many more stories I could relate like the two reflected upon here; however, maybe I'll get an "encore" opportunity with Lakeland Publications in the near future. While there can be a rare lighter side to law enforcement, there are many pressing and serious problems which are in the future of law enforcement in Lake County.

In this 200th year of our Federal Constitution, we should reflect on the provisions of the preamble to that document of freedom and understand that the concerns of our founding fathers were the same then as are the concerns of our fellow citizens today. Those concerns, which directly involve the office of the Sheriff, are insuring domestic tranquility, the general welfare and securing the blessings of liberty to ourselves and our posterity.

To continue to meet the challenges of the future, the Sheriff's Office must have the resources, both human and mechanical, to thwart crime and the criminal. Our County Board must recognize that the criminal element is becoming more sophisticated and desperate, as the forces of drug addiction and crime fuel the motives of the dishonest. It's time the County Board recognizes the need for airborne law enforcement to better serve and protect our citizens.

(Editor's note: Robert H. Babcox is serving his second term as Lake County Sheriff. His career in Lake County public life spans more than three decades.)

County board candidates are coming out of the woodworks

THE PLAYERS ARE starting to settle in for the county board primary races set for next March. In Dist. 6, incumbents C. Richard Anderson of Barrington and Jerry Beyer of Wauconda have parted ways.

Anderson sent Beyer a peremptory letter saying, "Many supporters will shy away from this campaign if I am tied with you."

Beyer said that he had told Anderson that his (Beyer's) supporters would shy away if he was tied with Anderson. Both men are seeking new running mates. Beyer expects to make a formal announcement in mid-October. Anderson did not say when a formal announcement would be forthcoming.

Over in Dist. 5, Warren Twp. Sup. and former board member Bob Depke is considering a run. That is interesting as Andrea Moore and Jim Dolan, both of Libertyville and both part of the chairmen's 12, are the candidates up for reelection. Some are speculating that Moore might have bigger game in mind, such as a run for the state legislature.

Just Politics

Perceptions differ on the future of medicine

With all that is written about the "trouble" medical care is in now, what the future holds becomes doubly important. I have culled the words of the mavens to get some clues. Prophecies vary, with the favorite date for speculation being about 15 years from now, but some are bold enough to predict into 2010. Predictions differ for this reason and more importantly because hospitals, doctors, demand. The people really don't want less care; they want more. Most people know about cost cutting but don't see a connection with the amount of care being demanded. They learn first if, as Medicare or HMO enrollees, they use their membership and find there are limits they hadn't known about. Congress will increase the care in order to get re-elected, and then increase the part paid by the patient. They will probably call it "medical care reform."

Economists see things differently than the public. If there's not enough money, you raise the costs for the public (supply and demand). Comment: Can you reconcile these opposite views? The government has its ways. To use a distasteful analogy, it's like the puppy with a choke collar. We don't want to hurt him, but he learns, and with an appropriate yank and his master's word he soon doesn't need the yank. In this case, the collar is a rise in taxes, bigger deductibles or co-payments. It will take about 15 years for virtually all to learn that we should expect less care or pay more. That's because we all don't need medical care the same year, so we all don't learn it at one time.

The doctors are predicted by virtually all the experts to become mainly employees of one prepaid system or another. It is believed that the self-employed physician will become almost a relic of the past. What hospital would need him if it has its own doctors? Who would go to him if they'd have to go to the hospital anyway? Comment: There are flaws in this. In every plan situations arise that are unexpected. Besides, experience teaches us that the more people are sure, the more likely they're wrong. Maybe we'll breed a different type of doctor who will answer a need.

Musings: The predictions that have been particularly partisan or involved can't be dealt with too simply here. They include the future type of doctor we will turn out (caring or insensitive, ethical or ruthlessly climbing the corporate ladder?), development of new drugs, the future of HMOs, the economy and its effect, the effect AIDS will have on the rest of medical care, the cost of malpractice insurance, and of course, national health care or socialized medicine. They are important enough so they will be dealt with in other columns.

Medical Musings

By Dr. Leo Tannenbaum

Economists, and sociologists all have different points of view.

The American Hospital Assn. sees a massive shift to outpatient care with tightening up of costs. It will hire its own physicians or engage in joint ventures with doctors. It will be doing more outpatient surgery. Comment: This is already here.

From 1983 to 1985, community hospitals decreased by 29,000 beds and cut 143,000 employees. This will accelerate. Some hospitals have closed and more will go broke. Aware of this danger, they try to "reconstruct" like any corporation doing poorly. They close some wings, add new services like mental departments or drug/alcohol dependency units, build nursing homes or satellites, unite in groups, or get bought out and become subsidiaries.

They are honestly trying to cut down costs but have not really succeeded. The burden of caring for indigent or uninsured patients will make the hospitals one of the first to ask for a bail-out like Chrysler Motors and even settle for socialized medicine for reasons of survival. Eventually, with all the advances in some care and outpatient techniques, they may become mainly intensive care units.

Public opinion polls show that most of the public is unaware of the government's attempt to decrease the amount of care

Rough weekend

The second week of football games was not kind to area teams.

The teams which had fared so well in week one generally found themselves at 1-1 after two games. Warren, Antioch, Stevenson, Lake Zurich were all first week winners and second week losers.

In fact, the area teams went 2-8 against non-area foes. Johnsborg's 22-14 win over Nazarine Academy and Mundelein's 8-0 win over Fenton saved area teams from being shutout.

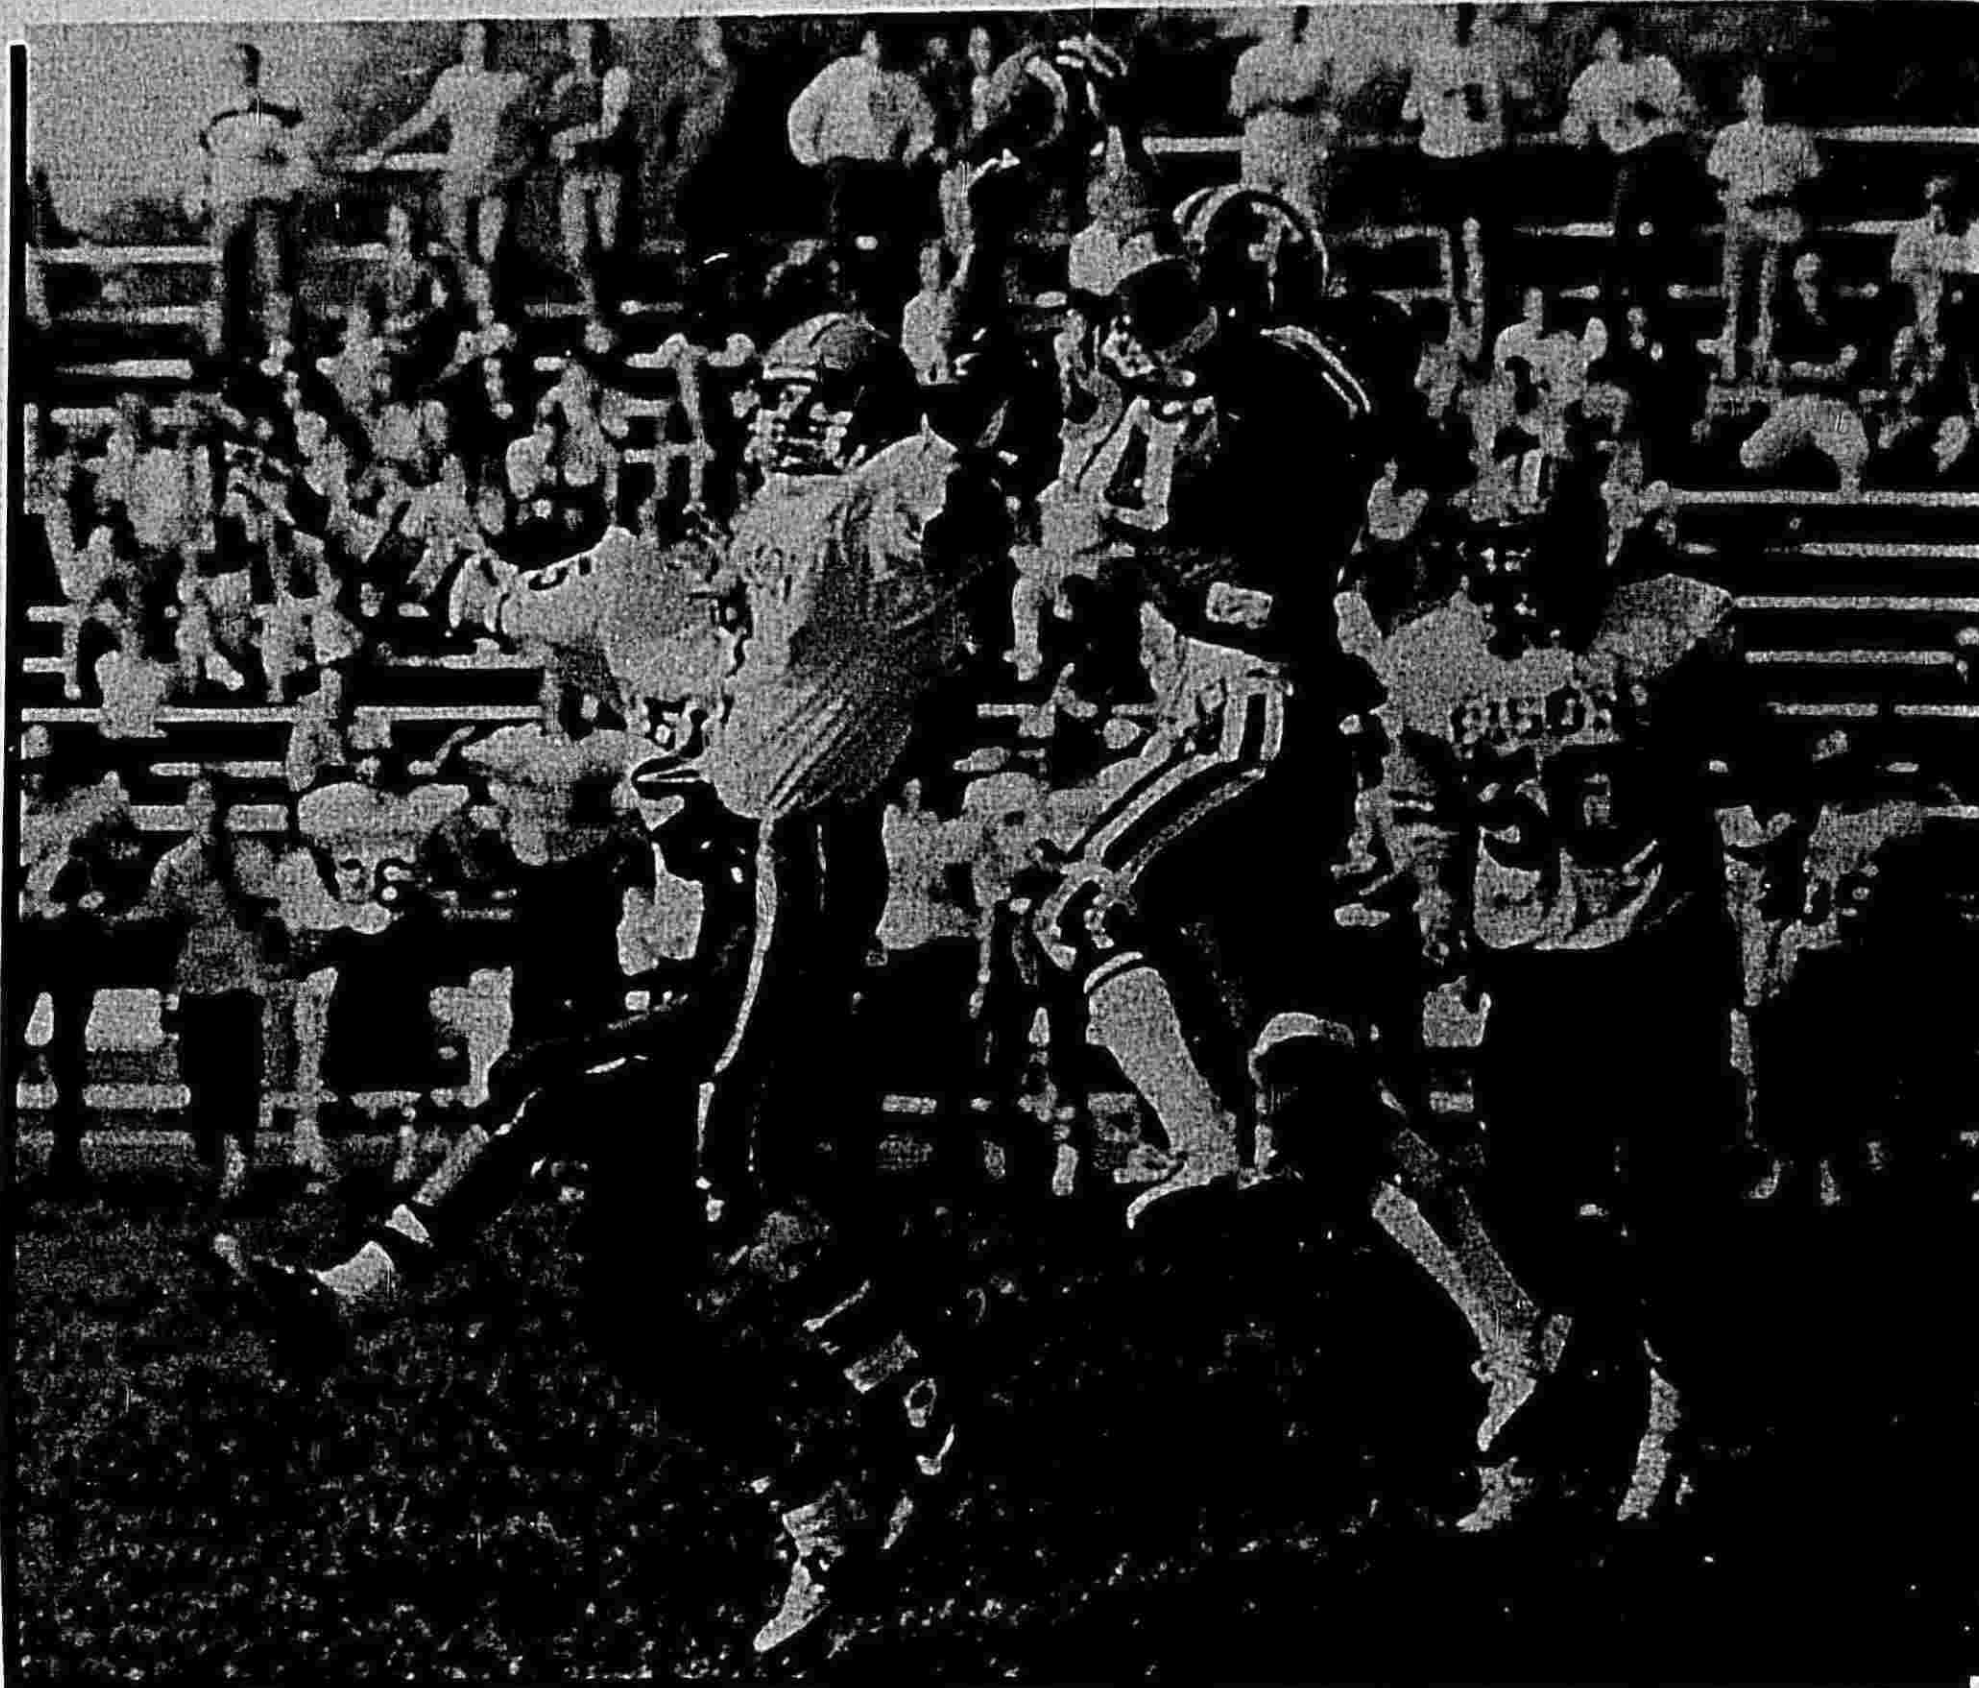

Volleyball Stars

Area volleyball fans don't have to go far to see graduates continue their careers.

Mundelein High School product Nancy Tuhy is at Elmhurst College playing for Division III Blue Jays, ranked No. 1 in one national Division III poll.

More collegiate connections: Cindy Messenger of Wauconda, a former Miss Wauconda, is continuing her tennis career at Millikin University in Decatur. She hopes to be playing either the No. 5 or No. 6 singles position.

Rams, 'Hawks aim for fast start in NWSC

Grayslake and Johnsborg will be two football teams looking for Northwest Suburban Conference momentum when they clash at Johnsborg Sept. 19.

The 1 p.m. game is Lakeland Newspapers' Game of the Week.

The host Skyhawks have an edge in that they are coming off a 22-14 win over St. Nazarine Academy which evened their record at 1-1. The Rams, meanwhile, improved over their showing in the season opener but still lost to Driscoll, 13-7 in overtime.

"It will be an interesting game for us. If we can reduce our number of mistakes, we'll be OK," Grayslake coach Harold Jahnke said.

Grayslake did the job defensively against Driscoll, allowing the hosts just 83 yards in net offense. But on the other side of the line, the execution was lacking when the Rams needed to put the winning score on the board.

"The disappointing thing was we had seven turnovers with three interceptions and four lost fumbles. But overall we were encouraged," Jahnke said.

Leading the way for the Rams on defense was Jeff Bofanti, who had a combined 26 tackles—both solos and assists.

Offensively, Jason Samuelson had 64 yards in 13 carries and scored Grayslake's touchdown. The seven-yard run in the second quarter capped a 57-yard drive and gave the visitors a 7-0 halftime lead.

Driscoll scored in the fourth quarter on the first of two TDs by running back Jim Wilks.

Grayslake missed a field goal late in the fourth quarter and Driscoll scored the winning touchdown in the overtime session.

The Rams will have to stop Johnsborg's Eric Mellum if they are to have a chance.

"Mellum will be a challenge for us," Jahnke said.

Mellum had only 48 yards at halftime but before the final gun sounded in Johnsborg's win, he had chalked up more than 200 yards and averaged 6.9 yards a carry. He also scored two touchdowns, kicked a field goal and an extra point.

"Mellum was just spectacular," Johnsborg coach Mike Roberts said.

Johnsborg had lost 39-0 in the season opener at Richmond-Burton, so a good showing was critical for the Skyhawks' chances.

"That was so important for us. Now they can have some self-confidence and begin to believe in themselves," Roberts said.

Johnsborg quarterback Bill Gohlbeck started the scoring with a five-yard touchdown run in the first quarter. Later in the period, Mellum booted a 35-yard field goal for a 9-0 hosts lead at halftime.

Mellum broke free on a 45-yard touchdown run in the third quarter. Mellum added the extra point for a 16-0 Johnsborg lead.

Nazarine struck twice in the fourth quarter, scoring two touchdowns to close the gap to 16-14.

But with about 1:30 left in the game, Mellum scored from 22 yards out to ice the win for Johnsborg.

Both Grayslake and Johnsborg will be hoping to better their passing games.

Round Lake hopes mistakes now part of their past

by JOEL WILTBERGER

Round Lake's football team will be hoping its season can begin afresh when the Panthers travel to Wauconda for a Sept. 19 Northwest Suburban Conference contest.

Fumbles, penalties and interceptions dug the Panthers into an early hole last week and Round Lake ended up losing to Dundee-Crown 34-6.

The first turnover—a fumble led to Dundee-Crown's first score. A pass interception at the Round Lake 30 by Dundee-Crown led to the second score and that's how it went the whole game.

Add that to a predicatable Round Lake offense and witnesses the end result was a Panther squad now limping into NWSC play needing a win to restore its confidence.

Game time in Wauconda is 1 p.m.

The only bright spot for Round Lake at Dundee-Crown was Aaron Meecke's third quarter kick-off return of 65 yards that brought the ball to the Dundee-Crown 30. That set up the visitors' only touchdown of the afternoon, a three-yard run by John Doucette.

Mohawks seek new players

Grayslake and Round Lake area youths looking to join the Grayslake Mohawks baseball program now have a chance.

Interested youngsters should contact Mohawks manager Tom Hunt at (312) 223-1619 for details.

The team topped off its most successful season to date when it held a banquet at Johnny D's Restaurant in Grayslake.

The Mohawks, competing in the Mike's Memorial and North Suburban Leagues have won 50 and lost 18 over the two years. They finished second in the state post-season tournament after winning the Mike's Memorial championship trophy last season.

Grant, Marengo will clash in key Northwest Suburban battle hoping an offense on second down is all and good, but times its the third down that counts. We felt we had them for two or three gains on third downs we would let them off the on third down. We'll have to have better third down play against Marengo," Grant coach Mike Rogowski said. Rogowski was referring to Grant's 19-6 loss at home last week to suprising McHenry. The visiting Warriors had won only one game last year. In Marengo, the Bulldogs will be going up against one of the pre-season contenders to replace the Bulldogs as Northwest Suburban Conference champs. Marengo won its first two games of the season while Grant comes into the Sept. 18 game with a 1-1 record.

"They have a very seasoned team with 18 or 19 seniors," Rogowski said of Marengo.

While Grant is trying to recover from its first regular season loss in two years, Marengo opened the season by beating rival Harvard for the first time in coach Kelly Camp's tenure and whipped Sandwich 32-14 last week.

Grant will have to stop running back Joe Koester, who scored two touchdowns last week. All told, the Marengo rushing attack registered 305 yards.

Marengo, like all NWSC teams, will try and stop Grant's top runner, Kevin Frystak. Frystak has rushed for more than 300 yards total in the first two games.

Rogowski said the Bulldogs may feature the pass more because defenses are keying on Frystak and Joe Gore. Frystak had 98 yards on 18 carries against McHenry.

"It was within our grasp. In the second half we outplayed them, but became our own worst enemy," Rogowski said.

McHenry running back Mike Boland was the Warriors main force early. Boland capped off a 66-yard drive after the opening kickoff with a 13-yard touchdown run for a 7-0 visitors lead. Boland, in the second quarter, threw a 23-yard pass to Nate Strandquist. The two-point conversion pass failed.

Grant quarterback Jim McGeever got the Bulldogs on the board with a nine-yard run with 2:13 left in the half.

Grant had the ball on its own 20 when a pass play was called in the fourth quarter.

"They had a seven or eight-man line and we thought we'd throw a pass to loosen them up," Rogowski said.

The strategy did not work as McHenry defensive back Andy Buckley picked off the errant pass and raced 80 yards for a touchdown with 4:19 remaining.

Rogowski knew going into the season that the '87 Bulldogs may take some time to develop.

"We knew this is a young team and we will have to cut down on our mistakes," Rogowski said.

Wauconda hopes progress

Wauconda's Bulldogs progress made during Jacobs last week into an upset win over Lake Sept. 19. Game at Wauconda is 1 p.m. "I thought we improved," Wauconda coach Fred Loffredo said after his 22-14 loss to Jacobs. Wauconda had defeated Lake 48-0 in the season opener.

The Bulldogs were in the league game at Jacobs in the final minute when Golden Eagles broke a 4 tie with a touchdown and a two-point conversion.

Quarterback Mark Southerland threw for two touchdowns against Jacobs, first a 39 yard pass to Richards in the first quarter that gave Wauconda a lead.

The second TD pass gave the Dogs a 14-7 lead in the third quarter. This time, Southerland connected with Tom Weber for 30 yards. Southerland completed eight of 19 passes.

Jacobs' winning score was set up by an interception by Doug Seibon with :30 left. Kurt Hollquist later caught Jacobs' TD pass on a deflection for the winning score.

Seibon, at quarterback, completed 14-for-33, 238 yards in passing.

As far as the Round Lake contest is concerned, the Bulldogs are most worried about the Panthers' considerable size advantage.

Loffredo said a key is also stopping Lofanso Wood, a speedy back.

Round Lake is coming off a 34-6 humbling the Panthers took at the hands of Dundee-Crown.

The Chargers' Jeff Trager was the main reason for the Panthers' demise, running for 217 yards and four touchdowns in Carpentersville.

Round Lake could not get an offense going, as the Panthers were held to just over 100 yards in total offense.

Rams netters seek repeat tourney showing

Grayslake's girls tennis team will be hoping for a repeat performance from last year's showing when the Rams compete in the Elk Grove Invitational Sept. 19.

The Rams last year finished in third in the meet.

"We lost our top two singles players to graduation, but we should do OK," Grayslake coach Paul Keller said.

Defending champ Cary Grove is not in the eight-team invitational. Keller said that leaves host Elk Grove as one of the teams to watch.

The Rams in dual meet action have lost three of their first four matches. After losing to McHenry and Waukegan West by 3-2 counts, Grayslake beat Warren 3-2. The Rams then started Northwest Suburban Conference play with a 4-1 loss at the hands of Johnsburg.

In the win over Warren,

Celeste Hafner got things started with a 6-4, 6-1 win over Meagan Potter at No. 1 singles. At second singles, Warren's Jenny Miller beat Grayslake's Dawn Wismer 7-5, 6-4. At third singles, Grayslake's Kristen Bacsa topped Stacy Siwek in to sets, 6-1, 6-3.

In doubles, Alice Norton and Jenni Grube beat Lisa Foltz and Alicia Klecker 6-1, 7-5.

Warren won in second doubles as Robin Witilka and Linda Saareca beat Mary Ann Higgins and Jenny Sponholtz 6-4, 6-0.

The top doubles team of Norton and Grube posted Grayslake's only win against Johnsburg. The dup beat Kathy Lane and Tracy DuRei in three sets, 3-6, 7-5, 6-2.

Johnsburg's Jennifer Amrich and Brooklyn Bean beat Higgins and Spanholz in the other doubles match 6-1, 6-1.

LET AN OUNCE OF PREVENTION BE WORTH A POUND OF CURE

Sometimes old sayings have a way of being lifesavers. Prostate cancer...you might not want to think about it. But unless you do, there's no way of detecting it-or controlling it.

At our new Prostate Clinic at the Robert R. McCormick University Clinics on the campus of nearby Chicago Medical School, we offer an excellent screening for both prostate cancer and enlarged prostate, including diagnosis.

And you'll be examined by trained specialists. If you're a man 40 or older and have put off the need to have a quick, easy examination of your prostate - whether you feel any discomfort or not - consider this:

If not detected and treated in time, death from prostate cancer today ranks second only to lung cancer in men. Think about that and then pick up the phone to make an appointment. It might be the best move you ever made.

Most area NSC teams aiming for revenge in league contests

Mundelein, coming off a last-second win over Fenton last week, will be looking for continued defensive strong performance when the Mustangs travel to Zion-Benton Sept. 19.

The Mustangs, if they are to break the .500 level in the North Suburban Conference, must stop Zion's top runner Don Farmer.

"We expect to see a lot of Farmer. He's probably the fastest individual runner in the conference," Mundelein coach Gary Heifner said.

Farmer scored two touchdowns in the Zee-Bees' season-opening win over North Chicago. Lake Forest topped Zion 14-6 last week.

"Our scouts were really impressed with the way they hit against Lake Forest," Heifner said.

Anyone watching the Mundelein-Fenton contest had to come away impressed with the Mundelein defense.

"Our defense played a tremendous game," Heifner said.

Heifner can point to four interceptions by Mundelein's linebackers as the highlight.

Fenton and Mundelein were tied at 0-0 when the Mustangs punted deep in their own zone late in the fourth quarter. Fenton fumbled the punt and Jeff Fuller recovered at the Mustang 49.

The Mustangs then proceeded to march 51 yards and had to overcome their own mistakes, including an off-sides and holding penalties.

Chip Sidel caught three passes from quarterback John Bagley during the drive. Running back Mark Matthews had key runs ranging from eight to 11 yards.

As the final ticks were Heifner said of the second-quarter drive.

Elsewhere in the North Suburban, Warren, Antioch and Stevenson, all week one winners, lost in the second week and are hoping to make comebacks.

will be hoping to make it two-for-three in upsets. In week one, Antioch stunned Libertyville 22-7 but last week found themselves at the other end of the upset scale, a 12-3 loss at North Chicago.

"They played a tremendous game. They had us off balance from the flip of the coin," Antioch coach Steve Wapon said.

Antioch scored first as Scott Gooch booted a field goal of 32 yards for a 3-0 lead with 4:09 left in the first quarter.

But that was all the Sequoits could muster. The Sequoits next best chance came when Gooch missed a field goal try in the third quarter.

North Chicago's one-two punch of running back

Thomas Newberry and quarterback Jeff Patterson led the way for the attack. Both scored touchdowns and left Antioch defense guessing.

"We were looking for Newberry but every time he had him stopped, they went to Patterson. We could get into the flow of the game," Antioch defense coordinator Mike Gooch said.

NSC Roundup

clicking off the Mundelein High School scoreboard, Rob Porcellius plunged over from a one-yard run with seven seconds left.

Although that drive will be remembered by players and fans, a second quarter event turned the game around, according to Heifner.

Senior defensive back Dan Casper picked off a Fenton pass at the Mundelein eight in the second quarter. The Mustangs then proceeded to use up eight minutes off the clock on a 70 yard drive which, while not ending up in a score, did give Mundelein the momentum back.

"That was a vitally important phase of the game,"

The Blue Devils fell at Libertyville 13-7 as the host Wildcats scored the winning touchdown with less than three minutes to go.

Warren's touchdown in the final period gave the Blue Devils a 7-6 lead when quarterback Derek Shelton connected with Dave Davis on a 10-yard pass.

"We had some errors but all of them are correctable errors," Warren coach Reggie Hughes said.

Hughes said the 'Devils were hurt by Libertyville's bigger players on the offensive and defensive line.

"We were a little intimidated by their line," Hughes said.

With Libertyville dominating the trenches, Shelton was forced out of the pocket several times, but ran for big gains.

Shelton finished with 75 yards rushing despite six sacks.

The Blue Devils return to their friendly nighttime confines when they host North Chicago Sept. 18 with an 8 p.m. kickoff.

Mundelein spikers plan on rebounding in NSC

Having good spikers is one thing, but if a volleyball team can't get the ball to them, then it has problems.

That seemed to be Mundelein volleyball team's major dilemma in the first two North Suburban Conference matches, both losses. The Mustangs will try and gain revenge for the two defeats when they face Antioch Sept. 19 in an away match. After the Antioch match, the Mustangs are at the Sacred Heart of Mary tournament Sept. 19.

"We have some good hitters but we have to get the ball to them," Mundelein coach Dan Szymkowiak said.

The Mustangs opened the season with two non-conference wins in impressive style but have run into trouble in NSC affairs.

Against Fenton, the Bison took the match in two games, 15-5, 15-11.

Mundelein won the first game against Zion-Benton 15-13 but the ZeeBees took over in the second and third sets, winning 15-8, 15-5.

"It was a match that could have gone either way. We showed our potential in the first game but something snapped in the second game," Szymkowiak said.

The first-year coach said

Cassie Cosmano and Chris Churchill both have been serving well.

Grant cross country teams hope for invite meet success

The Grant cross country team will be hoping to continue its successful season when the Bulldogs compete at the Warren Invitational Sept. 19.

The meet begins at 9 a.m.

The 1987-88 cross country season started with the Bulldogs competing and winning the girls meet at the Mundelein Invitational Sept. 2. Cindy Edwards led the Grant girls with a sixth place finish with a time of 12:23 over the two-mile course.

The team win is the first-ever invitational victory for a Grant girls team.

In the same meet, the freshmen boys team consisting of Kyle Rejholec, Scott Barettsmith, Vince Wever, Eric Kohler and Justin Griffin was fourth.

Mike Russo was the only

Grant entry in the sophomore race, but won the meet with a first-place time of 15:48 for two miles.

The Grant varsity team of Tod Rejholec, Ted Dawson, Rob Warden and Brian Sprague also ran well. Jenny Soles participated in the girls open race.

The boys varsity, also defending champs, lost to the Panthers.

Corsairs hope to pass test in East Suburban Catholic race

If Carmel football coach Mike Fitzgibbons ever wanted a test for his team, then it should come in the next two weeks.

The Corsairs travel to Chicago Sept. 11 to battle East Suburban Catholic conference powerhouse Marist in the league opener. Instead of coming off two strong non-league performances and with a 2-0 record, the Corsairs will bring doubts and a 1-1 mark following a 26-7 loss at Woodstock last week.

"We'll have to be able to bounce back. This will give us a chance to see what we're made of," Fitzgibbons said.

The Marist contest is even more important considering that ever-tough Joliet Catholic awaits the Corsairs the following week.

Two punts and an ill-fated drive at the start of the second half did the Corsairs in against Woodstock.

Woodstock, a team known for defense, did the job against Carmel standout tailback Donell Foster, who was held in check. Quarterback Thad Sutter, who fumbled the ball on a key third-and-one play, could not get the passing game going until the game's final minute.

The contest started out as if the Corsairs were going to breeze as easily as they had in a 35-0 romp over Waukegan East in the season opener.

Randy Splitt picked off a pass from Woodstock quarterback Joel Bosman and ran it in 32 yards. Carmel was ahead 7-0 after just three plays.

Woodstock missed a field goal on its next possession, but took advantage of Carmel's fumbled punt attempt at the end of the first quarter. The Blue Streaks got the ball at the Carmel 10 and two plays later David Bussell tied the game with a six-yard run.

Another blocked Carmel punt had the same result in the final five minutes of the first half.

Woodstock started from the Carmel 17 this time. Karl Klaus, after five plays, bowled over from the three for a 14-7 Woodstock lead at halftime.

"We were very calm at halftime. We just told them what the original game plan was," Fitzgibbons said.

Whatever was said worked.

Running back Steve Brock gained 29 yards on the first play from scrimmage. A late hit penalty on Woodstock later kept the drive alive at the Woodstock 14.

But after a run gained two yards, two straight incomplete passes left the Corsairs' hopes dwindling.

"Not scoring on that first drive of the second half took a lot of wind out of our sails," Fitzgibbons said.

Woodstock took advantage immediately. Taking over from their 12, the hosts marched downfield 88 yards in 10 plays. Bosman, who had plenty of time to throw most of the night, connected with receivers for three critical gains. Bosman did the honors himself this time, scoring from the one for a 20-7 lead.

Carmel was able to move the ball somewhat in the fourth quarter and advanced to the Woodstock 30. But a short pass failed to gain yardage needed for a first down. Woodstock iced the win on the subsequent drive, as Bosman found Tom Clouse open for a TD strike with 4:15 left in the game.

Bears aim for strong start in NWSC battle

Will Lake Zurich see the light?

That seems to be the question for the Bears this season, who have once again put off the debut of their new lights.

The game was slated for Sept. 18 under the lights against Marian Central has been changed to Sept. 19 at 1 p.m. at Mel Eide Field. The lights are not quite ready to be switched on yet.

The Bears will be hoping to begin the Northwest Suburban Conference season on a bright note against the Hurricanes, pre-season favorites to win the NWSC title.

Lake Zurich will be coming off a frustrating 7-0 loss to Cary-Grove which evened its record at 1-1. Marian Central beat Harvard 21-7 last week for a 2-0 start.

The Trojans' sophomore quarterback Jeff Hughes scored the game's only touchdown on a one-yard run with one second left in the first quarter.

Neither team did much on offense after that.

Cary's big defensive play of the game came when Tom Furman picked off Lake Zurich quarterback Todd Kuklinski's pass in the game's waning minutes.

MHS sports teams busy

Mundelein's fall sports teams are in for a busy week as seasons head to their midpoint.

Mundelein's volleyball team travels to Antioch for a Sept. 18 North Suburban Conference match.

Hoping for better

Carmel football assistant coach Andy Bitto and head coach Mike Fitzgibbons look on as Woodstock routs Corsairs 26-7. Carmel starts East Suburban Catholic Conference play at Marist Sept. 18.
